

PROPOSALS BEWILDER DELEGATES

Adoption of Even a Majority of Them Might Endanger Constitution

BEGINNING OF SUMMER

May Find Convention Still in Session—Andreae and Wheeler Given Hearing.

Columbus, Jan. 26.—The constitutional convention will be in session until the last of June or the first of July. This was the prediction made today by the constitutional delegates.
Solomon Johnson, delegate from Williams county stated that the number of proposals filed had become bewildering as all the delegates and added that the adoption of even a majority of them would make the new constitution so large a proposition that the electors of the state would be unable to give it the consideration necessary and would merely reject it.

He urged the necessity of limiting the number of proposals and expedient committee work. Delegate Ross Read declared that the initiative and referendum proposal should not be submitted to the electors in the main body of the constitution as has been proposed. He said "the initiative and referendum would stand on its own merits; and to submit it with the remainder of the constitution would place it in danger of rejection."

The cause for the long drawn out session as explained would be double consideration of constitutional proposals. This would result from information reports from nearly every consideration of the more important measures.

Whether the license clause to be submitted to the people by the constitutional convention—and it seems to be assumed that the convention will submit an alternative clause—shall contain restrictions on liquor to be imposed on the traffic, or whether these shall be left to the general assembly, was the general question debated before the liquor traffic committee yesterday.

Representing the militant drys, Superintendent Wayne B. Wheeler, of the Anti-Saloon League, declared that he was not opposed to a restricted liquor clause for wet territory, but wanted to go with it an alternative progressive proposition, which he did not outline. Percy Andreae of Cincinnati, appearing for the Liberal League, insisted restrictions on the liquor traffic should be left to the legislature.

It was on this issue that, in the first open hearing, the wet and dry

PHILIPPINE RICE CROP IS FAILURE

Manila, Jan. 26.—The report has been filed of the fact that half of the rice crop in the Philippines is a failure. Recommendations to avert a serious crisis are to be presented both the assembly and commissioners.

MANY KILLED IN EARTHQUAKE

Athens, Greece, Jan. 26.—At least 73 persons were killed by earthquake shocks among the islands of the Ionian Sea yesterday, according to reports received today upon the resumption of communication. Sixty were killed on the island of Zanto, nine on Cephalonia and four others on smaller islands of the group. Warships with supplies for the homeless have been dispatched.

WILL ELECTROCUTE NEGRO MURDERER

New York, Jan. 26.—John Cain, a negro murderer, who ran amuck with a knife last May and killed three and seriously wounded six, was sentenced today to die in an electric chair during the week beginning March 1 next.
He was convicted several days ago.

"GABY" WEDS AMERICAN

New York, Jan. 26.—A cablegram received here today announced the marriage of Mlle Gaby Deslys, the Parisian singer, for love of whom King Manuel of Portugal is generally credited with having sacrificed his throne, to Harry Pilcer, an American dancer formerly in the Winter Garden company in this city.

TAFT MAKES PEACE WITH MAGNATES AND SECURES WALL STREET'S SUPPORT

Washington, Jan. 26.—That the great business interests of the country have reconsidered their determination to oppose the renomination of President Taft, is the information which reached the White House tonight.

With it went the explanation that this could not have been said one week ago. Coinciding with a sudden turn of events whereby the administration now believes it is absolutely assured the support of the powerful business interests, so it is stated, comes the definite pledge of substantial financial backing for the Taft campaign.

The information has come direct from some of the biggest manufacturers and merchants who have been disgruntled with the prosecution by the administration of some of the trusts and who had declared war upon President Taft to get even. Today it was checked up and verified by Senators Crane of Massachusetts, Penrose of Pennsylvania and Smoot of Utah. These three senators are credited with bearing the closest relations with the big interests of the country of any men in congress.

Both Penrose and Crane have been in New York much of the last week working upon the proposition of bringing the great corporation heads into line for Taft. They have reported to the president that their mission was successful, and that, within the next ten days, the character of the fight against his renomination will have changed entirely.

Crane, Smoot and Penrose are the center of the stand pat element in the senate that is still fighting to maintain its power. Up until a week or so ago, it is known that Senator Crane was flirting with the Roosevelt boom. Now, after several days spent by Crane in New York, it is announced that the captains of industry who were dissatisfied with the tariff, Canadian reciprocity and other policies of the administration and threatened to bolt, have changed their minds. The further statement is made that these great business interests "are now willing to accept Taft, rather than experiment with a president who, they fear, might prove even more disturbing to their comfort."

There appears to be no question but that some of the great industrial and financial interests have made it a point to let the president and his friends know of their change of heart. After consultation with the White House, Senators Penrose, Crane and Smoot today met and outlined a plan of campaign for the renomination of the president. Following this meeting, it was reported that within a few weeks, Postmaster General Hitchcock might resign his cabinet position and assume the active management of the Taft campaign.

It was explained that Hitchcock, despite his oft repeated statements that he was out of politics, might take this step as a means of clearing himself completely from the annoying charge of ingratitude and disloyalty to the president. While neither Crane, Penrose nor Smoot would discuss the Hitchcock report, it is significant in connection with the announcement that the business interests have agreed to the support of the Taft campaign.

Senator Murray Crane was called upon to take command in the 1908 campaign, as a time when the Taft candidacy, at many Republican leaders believed, was drifting toward the rocks. He has been the confidential adviser of the Taft administration.
Furthermore, by his colleagues he is regarded as an absolute barometer of the attitude of the financial interests of the country. Although it is announced that there will be no manager with that title, Senator Crane will now take command of the Taft campaign for renomination, as associating himself closely with Penrose and Smoot and other friends of the president in both senate and house.

The three senators declare with perfectly straight faces that there is to be no "stealthy substance manipulation." Peish the thought that there is to be any such thing as vulgar political wire pulling. On the contrary, it is stated that the movement inaugurated today is "simply an organized effort of the president's friends and supporters in congress to secure expression of the public wish in the form of delegates to the national convention and to disabuse the public mind of the idea that the noise stirred up by the insurgent element threatens the renomination of the president."

While no direct charges are made that the United States Steel Corporation, through any of its officials, has been turning the money to promote the Roosevelt boom, the assurance also has gone to the White House that these steel trust magnates can be expected, from now on, to show a loss of interest in the Roosevelt propaganda and will "re-sign themselves to their fate."

The explanation for the lack of organized activity on the part of the Taft forces up to this time, as given today, and given with a seeming air of sincerity, was that the friends of the president remained passive because "they felt certain of his re-nomination and considered it unnecessary to take any aggressive steps." The response of the insurgents to this explanation has been a series of loud guffaws.

To start with, the Penrose-Crane-Smoot combination promises the president a good sized block of convention voters, which it assumes to control. Penrose says the progressive movement in Pennsylvania will be run onto a side track, and that practically all, if not every one of the delegates from that state, will go to Chicago for Taft. Crane promises the solid delegation from Massachusetts, while Smoot says he will not alone take the responsibility for results in Utah, but from other of the intermountain states. The senatorial triumvirate says the reports from the south are entirely satisfactory and that no fear is entertained regarding the attitude of the delegations from that portion of the country.

The situation in Ohio, it is admitted, is the most embarrassing to the friends of the president of all the complications that exist. With this admission goes the announcement that, from now on the Ohio situation is to be taken in hand and aggressive tactics pursued in opposition to the Roosevelt and La Follette boomers. The fur will begin flying, so it is stated, Monday when the president starts his Ohio speaking tour by way of Cleveland. The president will not be in the executive offices tomorrow. He will remain in the library at the White House, so it is stated, denying himself to callers so as to prepare his Ohio speech without interruption.

The immediate presidential party on the Ohio trip will consist in addition to the president, of Archibald Butt, Secretary of the Interior, Representative Nye of Minnesota, and Gus J.
Karger, who is at the head of the administration publicity force.

OHIO CORN CROP IS THREATENED BY OBSCURE FUNGUS

Columbus, Jan. 26.—The Ohio corn crops is threatened with destruction by an obscure fungus according to the representative sent to Auditor of State Fullington today in a request for the state agricultural experiment station for an appropriation to fight the deadly pest. It is stated the estimated loss of $22,000,000 was caused to the corn crop in 1910 through this costly pest. The experiment station asked $2,000 to make an investigation into the cause of this pest and stop a spread of it. The state emergency board was called to meet Saturday for a thorough consideration of the affair.

REFUSED CHURCHILL USE OF ULSTER HALL

Belfast, Ireland, Jan. 26.—The City Corporation today refused the request of the Liberal association for the use of Ulster hall on the morning of February 1, the day of the Home Rule demonstration at which Winston Spence Churchill, first Lord of the Admiralty and John B. Redmond, the leader of the nationalists, are to speak.

The corporation also foisted any further possible manoeuvre by passing a resolution not to let Ulster hall for any further meetings of any kind in February.

in bed by his wife. He was a grocer and meat market proprietor and attended to business as usual yesterday.
Heart trouble is given as the cause.

BLACKEST PAGE IN HISTORY

Is Congressman Rainey's Characterization of the Acquisition of Panama

DENOUNCES CROMWELL

Calling Him a Dangerous Lobbyist and Also Condemns Roosevelt's Action.

Washington, Jan. 26.—Characterizing William Nelson Cromwell as the most dangerous man this country has produced since the days of Aaron Burri, and declaring that the record of the transaction whereby this government acquired the Panama canal zone is the blackest page in the history of American diplomacy, Representative of Rainey of Illinois, last evening urged the house committee on foreign affairs to report his resolution making inquiry as to the right of Cromwell to submit his grievances to The Hague. He further charged that the Panamanian declaration of independence was drafted in the New York office of Cromwell; that the state department had cognizance of it, and that the time fixed to start the fireworks by which the Columbian states constituting the isothus of Panama was set for Nov. 3, because on the day following the newspapers of the United States would be filled with election news and little notice would be taken of the revolution of the isthmus and the part which the United States was taking in it.

The Rainey resolution was prompted by the statement which, torn-President Roosevelt is alleged to have made in a speech on the Pacific Coast last April, when he was quoted as saying that he "took" Panama without consulting congress, because if he had waited upon congress for action, congress would still be talking about it.

The Illinois member asserted that the state department had full knowledge of the plans of Cromwell and his associates, who had acquired the property of the French Canal Company from the stockholders and proposed selling it to the United States.
"William Nelson Cromwell," he said, "was the most successful revolutionist and the most accomplished lobbyist the world has ever seen. I propose to show this committee that the declaration of Panamanian independence was framed in the New York office of William Nelson Cromwell. He was the agent of the new French company which owned the canal work. He was in charge of the Panama Railroad and Steamship Company. The revolution was accomplished through the employees of these companies in Panama. These men were owned by Cromwell and he directed their efforts."

Rainey quoted from the treaty of 1846 with Colombia to show that the United States had considered it her duty to aid Colombia in her internal troubles.

"Instead of that," he asserted,
"aid and comfort were given to the revolutionists."

Rainey declared that President Roosevelt had exceeded his authority in taking over the Panama Canal Zone, and quoted from a speech of the former president at Berkeley, Cal., last April, in which Rainey called a "confession," and in which Roosevelt said that he "just took" the zone.

The congressman declared that by a more judicious division of the $40,000-000 paid for the Canal Zone between the Colombian government and the French canal company the zone could easily have been obtained by

"Columb had demanded more than the $10,000,000 which were offered," said Rainey, "but we went into this affair and fomented this revolution in order to assure the payment of a greater sum than they deserved to the Frenchmen who had the shares of the new company. We were not fighting to get the payment of our money to the Frenchmen instead of to Columbia."

"Do you know whether the French company received all of the money except the paid Colombia?" asked Representative Garner.
"I prefer not to go into that matter," said Rainey.
"You think, I suppose, that President Roosevelt and John Hay got it," remarked Congressman Cooper.
"Not at all," answered Rainey. "I am convinced that they did not." Mr. Rainey believed the committee should recommend the submission of the matter to The Hague Tribunal to determine whether Colombia has been wronged, and if so, what amends should be made. He brought with him 10 big bags of evidence, which will be submitted to the committee.

PRESIDENT'S FRIEND, JOHN HAYS HAMMOND, ADVISES HIM IN RENOMINATION CAMPAIGN

John Hays Hammond, president of the National League of Republican Clubs, is one of the men to whom President Taft is looking for advice in his campaign for the renomination. Hammond is one of the president's warm friends. In a visit this week, he counseled the chief executive to carry out openly and combat the political moves being made to discredit him.

MOB SHOTS FORMER RULER OF GUAYAQUIL, BEHEADS AND BURNS BODY IN THE STREET

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Jan. 26.— General Pedro Montero, formerly president of Guayaquil, was yesterday shot by the angry populace, his body dragged through the street, beheaded and burned. General Montero was last November proclaimed president, but handed over the leadership to General Alfaro. He, along with 22 leaders were captured on January 22 and last evening he was brought before a court martial and sentenced to 16 years in the penitentiary. When General Alfaro who presided over the court martial announced the sentence the crush of angry people who surged the government palace showed violence. The excitement increased until some of them rushed into the court room, riddled General Montero with bullets and seized his body dragging it into the street. There they hacked the head off and gathered fuel with which they started a fire. Into this was cast the head and trunk General Alfaro and Palaez captured at the same time were sent to a distant prison.

PRES. TAFT APPEALS TO ALL AMERICANS TO ASSIST IN RELIEVING FAMINE SUFFERERS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26.—An application through ordinary channels having failed to elicit a response commensurate with the situation President Taft today personally as President of the American Red Cross Association sent out an appeal for funds to relieve the famine stricken people of China. Mr. Taft's plea in part is as follows:

"As president of the American National Red Cross Society it becomes my imperative duty to call to the attention of the people of the United States the condition of awful destitution now in existence in certain provinces of China. Millions of human beings are facing starvation. Until the present revolution in China has subsided and the functions of an efficient government established these conditions must be relieved by the charity of every country. In the name of humanity the Red Cross Society calls once more on American people to come to the relief of a sister nation with that prompt generosity which has never failed in times of great emergency."

FOUR KILLED IN COLLISION

Leesburg, Ga., Jan. 26.—Four persons were killed at 5:15 this morning in a collision on the Central of Georgia railroad when east bound passenger train No. 8 and a west bound freight collided.

neer; G. W. Gassett, fireman; G. O.
Lindsay, engineer, and a negro fireman unidentified.

The trains came together in a dense fog two miles from Leesburg station and a confusion of orders is blamed for the wreck. A mail car, baggage car and freight car were overturned, and the engines were demolished.

PRESIDENT VISITED BY ROYAL DUKE

Delighted With His Stay at the Nation's Capital

CALLS ON PRESS CLUB

Received Upstairs Welcome Makes First and Only Public Speech.

Washington, Jan. 26.—The duke of Connaught went to the American pace in his visit to the national capital yesterday. Arriving late in the afternoon he was wheeled first to the British embassy, spent a short time in the White House, where he was received by President and Mrs. Taft, was then motored back to the embassy, where he was the guest of honor at a dinner to which most of the prominent members of diplomatic corps were invited, visited the National Press Club and then, tired but delighted, as he expressed it, sought his private car. He left about midnight for New York.

The duke, the first royal visitor to Washington in many years, spent 40 minutes in the White House and President Taft returned his call at the British embassy.

Together the chief executive and the United States and his vice regal visitor were together for a little more than an hour. The duke had no official message to bear from England and the president had none to give. Their conversation was of the most general character, and the only formal welcome to his royal highness was that extended to him when he left his private car at the Union Station, by Major A. W. Butt, President Taft's personal aide.

The reception in the White House lasted only 15 minutes and was as unconventional as state department officials and the British ambassador could make it. The duke was presented to the president by Ambassador Bryce and then Mr. Taft presented him to Mrs. Taft and Miss Helen Taft. The members of the cabinet and their wives were presented by Major Butt.

Miss James Bryce, First Assistant Secretary of State Huntington Wilson and Second Assistant Secretary Adee were the only guests outside the cabinet. The duke's aid, Col.
Lowther, who came with him from New York, and the staff of the British embassy were presented to Mr.
Taft.

Following the formal reception tea was served in the red room of the White House by Miss Helen Taft.

The duke chatted with all the president's guests, but spent much of his time talking with Mr. Taft and Secretary of State Knox.

The president's return call at the embassy was most informal. Only Major Butt accompanied him and he was received in the drawing room, where his royal highness talked with the president for about 20 minutes.
The president walked back to the White House. Last night Mr. Taft was the guest of Postmaster General Hitchcock at a cabinet dinner and the duke was the guest of Ambassador Bryce at a dinner at the embassy, which he left shortly before midnight to visit the National Press Club.

At the Press Club the duke made the first and only public speech of his visit to the United States. On being introduced to the assembled newspaper men, he said:

"I assure you it is a pleasure to meet you gentlemen who hold positions of such influence in this country. I hope you will always use it for the good of the world. I hope, also, that England and the United States will be always the best of friends for the good of the world."

The visitor, who was accompanied by Ambassador Bryce, had been assured that his visit to the Press Club would be informal. He was received with an uproarious welcome.

FANATICAL WOMEN

Were About to Crucify Man Whom They Worshipped as a Saviour When Police Interfered.

Lodz, Russian Poland, Jan. 26.— Only the timely arrival of the police today prevented a band of fanatical women from crucifying a man whom they worshipped as a Saviour. They urged him to allow himself to be crucified so as to be able to prove himself by his resurrection. Kowalski's faith, however, wavered and he opposed the carrying out of the suggestion to crucify him. Ultimately 30 women took his house by storm and were proceeding with the immolation when the police interfered.

GIRL KILLED; FIANCE UNHURT

Toledo, O., Jan. 25.—While Ida Gregory and her fiancé, Joseph Stoeckle, were being driven in an automobile by J. R. Blair, a real estate man, to look at their prospective home, they were run down by an Ann Arbor railroad motor car yesterday afternoon. The car struck the rear wheels of the automobile, overturning it. Miss Gregory's neck was broken. She died instantly. The two men escaped with bruises. The body was brought to the station on the motor car. Stoeckle accompanied it. Blair, overcome at the accident, refused to take the motor, but went home in a street car and declined to see any one.

Both speakers were engaged in argument by members of the committee. KIDNEY REMEDY THAT ACTS LIKE MAGIC

I have been a terrible sufferer for a number of years with kidney and liver trouble, also nervous prostration and health generally poor, constitution entirely run down until life became a burden. I tried physicians and every available remedy, but found no relief. I was induced to give Dr. Kilmor's Swamp-Root a trial, which acted like magic, and am happy to say that I believe I am entirely cured, and now as good as a man as ever.

I believe it my duty to make this public statement that I may help others who may be suffering from the same trouble. Swamp-Root is without question the greatest remedy in the world. Anyone in doubt of this statement or the authenticity can address me as below.

Yours very truly,
M. H. McCoy,
Van Wert, Ohio.

State of Ohio, Van Wert County, ss: The foregoing statement sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence this 18th day of July, 1909, by the said M. H. McCoy, A. C. Gilpin, Notary Public.

Letter to Dr. Kilmor, Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Prove What Swamp-Root Will Do for You.

Send to Dr. Kilmor & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. It will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling all about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention the Newark Daily Advocate. Regular 50-cent and one dollar size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

generally should have maintained the standard of respectability which it has. For, in spite of the fact that has been said and written about the lawless saloon, the fact is that an overwhelming majority of the saloon keepers of the state are men of good character and staunch principles. Indeed, I venture to say that with every means thus denied them of protecting their business against the corrupting influences that have been permitted to assail it, they have struggled against those influences with a success which the members of few trades and professions—and I do not except even the most exalted—would, under like circumstances, have achieved.

Mr. Andrae charged the drys with deliberately creating evil, hoping thereby to accomplish their purpose to make the state dry. He referred to the enactment of the Rose county option law and the repudiation of its operation after three years' operation in a large majority of the counties. He asserted that the wets were ready to join with the Anti-Saloon League in enactment of a real regulatory measure, but the drys had persistently refused. He closed with a strong appeal to take the question out of politics.

Mr. Wheeler's main argument was directed against license in any form, declaring it was setting up a monopoly in the business and because he declared the traffic was inherently bad.

Under the present constitution, which prevents licensing the liquor traffic, full power is given to provide against the evils that result from it. Local option laws covering residence districts, villages, townships, cities and counties, have been enacted. Regulatory laws have been passed.

The power in the constitution has by no means been exhausted. Under that power, saloons may be further regulated or reduced in number. This reason this power, which lies dormant in the constitution, has not been used to restrict the liquor traffic, is that the liquor interests have prevented it in the general assembly.

"If no added power is given to restrict or prohibit the traffic in a license clause to be submitted, it is clearly a backward step. If some new power is given, then it is a forward step.

"On the other hand, in the proposals thus far introduced, the license system would protect the speaker in the territory. It repeals the $1000 tax and the secret service department."

He charged the wets with bad faith and declared the promised restrictions are conspicuous by their absence. He then went into a general review of the fight and charged that the wets never brought in a real regulatory law.

Mr. Wheeler concluded with merely a suggestion of what his alternative no-license clause would be. He said:

"If any license clause is submitted to the people, then fair play would suggest that some alternative go with it to give the people an opportunity to make advancement in handling the saloon. No good reason should be given for extending privileges to an evil traffic and give no opportunity to the inherent rights of home and the public welfare by submitting some proposition in their interest.

"The ideal toward which every progressive temperance worker looks is the prohibition of the liquor traffic from the state. I realize the objection which some of this committee, and some others, have to this kind of a law. We are told that it cannot be enforced in Cincinnati, Cleveland, Toledo and other large cities.

"What is the reason it cannot be enforced? Simply because those who are now asking for large privileges for the liquor traffic prevent the enforcement of liquor regulatory law, that are now on the statute books. It is doubtless true that a prohibitory law would be no better enforced in Cincinnati than the Sunday closing law, and many other laws now on the statute books, which are openly violated.

"If, however, this committee and the convention feel that such a law could not be enforced in these large cities, dominated by the liquor interests, what excuse can be given for not allowing the people outside of these cities to fix the status of dry territory? Certainly the people have an inherent right to vote on this question in the whole state or any part of it."

Mr. Andrae traced the history of the no-license clause in the constitution of 1851, and declared its deliberate purpose was to make the traffic so disreputable that the drys eventually could succeed in having it abolished.

"Proceeding on this theory, he said, 'What would be thought of men who, believing the consumption of well water to be fraught with danger to public health, and failing to deprive the people of the right to sink and use wells, would deliberately pass a law forbidding them to encase their wells and thus protect them against contamination from the surrounding earth, with the purpose of allowing sewage and other deadly matter to seep into them unobstructed and thereby render them so dangerous and injurious to the community at large that, for the sake of pure self-preservation, it would consent to abolish them altogether?'

Substitute the word saloon for the word well, and this is exactly what was done, and done deliberately, by those who, 61 years ago, deprived the saloon of its one and only safeguard against the intrusion of evil and vicious elements, namely, a license imposing restrictions as to the character and number of persons permitted to engage in the saloon business.

"In taking the license from the liquor traffic they took from it, knowingly, that which corresponds with the enactment of a well, in other words, its only protection against the sewage and foul matter that is likely to seep into it from the outside; and having done this, they heaped insult upon injury by adding a paragraph to their no-license clause sarcastically empowering the legislature to pass laws providing against the evils arising from the traffic they had thus designedly left unprotected against them. Could a more cruel piece of irony be conceived?'

"It is nothing less than a marvel that under such conditions as these, the saloon business of this state

CASCARETS WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

Salts, Calomel and Cathartic Pills are Violent—They Act on Bowels as Pepper Acts in Nostrials.

Take a Cascaret tonight and thoroughly cleanse your liver, stomach and bowels, and you will surely feel great by morning. You men and women who have headache, coated tongue, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passage every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

Remember a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. A 10 cent box from your druggist means a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children.

COUNTRY WIDE MOVEMENT IS ON FOR ROOSEVELT

Columbus, Jan. 26.—Prof. W. H. McFarland, secretary of the Franklin County Progressive Republican League, which endorsed Senator LaFollette, announced yesterday he would tender his resignation and join a country-wide Roosevelt movement, which is to be started by the organization of a club. Secretary McFarland recently wrote Colonel Roosevelt telling him a large percentage of the membership of the progressive clubs was for him.

Colonel Roosevelt replied: "I am really touched by your letter, but of course you would not have me make any comment upon what you say. It was really good of you to write, and I appreciate your doing so."

LOST CO-ED WAS IN CHICAGO FOR PAST FEW DAYS

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 26.—That Miss Edna Ford, a young woman of Beaver Dam, Ky., who recently disappeared from her home and who was believed for a time to be dead, was in Chicago until two days ago and may now be in Oxford, O., is the belief of the local police.

After the mysterious disappearance of Miss Ford some one in Chicago called by long distance telephone the Rev. Dr. Francis Irwin, pastor of the Fourth Avenue Presbyterian church of this city, and asked concerning the girl who was then reported to be on her way to Oxford. Dr. Irwin requested more information but the connection was cut.

Yesterday he received in the mail a photograph bearing nothing further than the address "Room 202, East Randolph street, Chicago. This has been sent to Beaver Dam for identification.

LIVED AT CHICAGO Y. W. C. A.
Chicago, Jan. 26.—Miss Edna Ford, sought by her parents at Beaver Dam, Ky., lived for several weeks the latter part of last year at the Young Women's Christian Association here, where she was registered as a student of the Western College for Women at Oxford, Ohio.

Relatives here, learning of the search for the girl, became mysteriously silent regarding her probable whereabouts and the police were able to get little information.

Mrs. Grace Gholson, in charge of a department of a nurses' outfitting concern here, told the police she was an aunt of the girl, and that she knew Edna had disappeared, but would say nothing more. Gossip at the same institution had it that Miss Ford last was heard of when she left Rockport, Ky., supposedly for school, January 14. Her trunk, it was said, was found to be checked to St. Louis, but nothing was heard of her since.

and, seeing some members smoking, turned to the nearest.

"I'm glad to see that this really is informal," he said. "May I ask for a cigarette?"

He chatted with the members for some time and then signed his name in the guest book. He did not use his title but jotted down, "Arthur, governor general of Canada."

The duke arrived in Washington at 4:18 and the concourse at the Union Station was well filled with spectators. Three White House automobiles were waiting and the visitor and the aides and embassy attaches were taken immediately to the White House and back four troops of cavalry, an unusually large number, formed an escort of honor. Thousands of people crowded around the White House grounds to watch the duke pass in, but he rode in a closed automobile and they were disappointed. A dozen extra policemen kept the crowd outside the gates.

The duke abandoned his private car. He rode in the electric locomotive just before the train started from New York and rode beside the engineer under the Hudson and across the New Jersey meadows to Manhattan Transfer, 11 miles out.

There a steam locomotive replaced the electric engine, and the duke entered the private car. During his ride in the locomotive the duke interviewed the engineer at length and seemed greatly interested in the mechanism of the big engine.

BALD HEADS NOT WANTED

Baldness is too Generally Considered A Sign of Advanced Age.

A baldheaded person does not have an equal chance with one blessed with a healthy head of hair, because baldness is too generally accepted as an indication of age. Many large corporations have established an age limit and refuse to take men over 35 years of age as new employees.

Probably 65% of baldheaded people may regain a good head of hair if they will follow our advice and accept our offer. We have a remedy that we positively guarantee to grow hair on any head, unless the roots of the hair are entirely dead, their follicles closed and the scalp has become glazed and shiny. We want people to try this remedy at our risk, with the distinct understanding that unless it does exactly what we claim it will and gives satisfaction in every respect, we shall make no charge for the remedy used during the trial.

We know exactly what we are talking about, and with this offer back of our statements no one should doubt our word, or hesitate to put our remedy to an actual test.

We want every one in Newark who is suffering from any scalp or hair trouble, dandruff, falling hair, or baldness to try our Rexall "33" Hair Tonic. We want them to use it regularly—say until three bottles have been used—and if it does not eradicate dandruff, cleanse and refresh the scalp, tighten the hair in its roots and grow new hair, we will return every cent paid us for the remedy for the mere asking. There is no formality expected, and we exact no obligation from the user whatever.

We are established right here in Newark and make this offer with a full understanding that our business success depends entirely upon the sort of treatment we accord our customers, and we would not dare make the above offer unless we were positively certain that we could substantiate it in every particular. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store, Frank D. Hall, druggist, 10 North Side Square, Newark, Ohio.

CHAPTER XVI.

All week every one in the office knew that something new and big was about in Daylight's mind. On Sunday Dede learned all about it.

"I've been thinking a lot of our talk," he began, "and I've got an idea I'd like to give it a flutter. And I've got a proposition to make you your hair stand up. It's what you call legitimate, and at the same time it's the gosh-dangdest gamble a man ever went into. How about planting minutes wholesale, and making two minutes grow where one minute grew before? Oh, yes, and planting a few trees, too—say several million of them. You remember the quarry I made believe I was looking at? Well, I'm going to buy it. I'm going to buy these hills, too, clear from here around to Berkeley and down the other way to San Leandro. I own a lot of them already, for that matter. But this is the word. I'll be buying a long time, to come before anything much is guessed about it, and I don't want the market to jump up over it. You see that hill over there. It's my hill running clear down its slopes through Piedmont and halfway along those rolling hills into Oakland. And it's nothing to all the things I'm going to buy."

He paused triumphantly. "The ferry system between Oakland and San Francisco is the worst one-horse concern in the United States. You cross on it every day, six days in the week. That's say, twenty-five days a month, or three hundred a year. How long does it take you one way? Forty minutes, if you're lucky. I'm going to put you across in twenty minutes. If that ain't making two minutes grow where one grew before, knock off my head with little apples. I'll save you twenty minutes each way. That's forty minutes a day, times three hundred, equal to twelve thousand minutes a year, just for you, just for one person. Let's see: that's two hundred whole hours. Suppose I save two hundred hours a year for thousands of other folks—that's farming some, ain't it? Come on. Let's ride up that hill, and when I get you out on top where you can see something, I'll talk sense."

A small footpath dropped down to the dry bed of the canyon, which they crossed before they began the climb. The slope was steep and covered with matted brush and bushes, through which the horses slipped and lunged. Showers of twigs and leaves fell upon them, and predicament followed predicament, until they emerged on the hilltop the worse for wear but happy and excited. Here no trees obstructed the view. The particular hill on which they were, out-jutted from the regular line of the range, so that the sweep of their vision extended over three-quarters of the circle. Below, on the flat land bordering the bay, lay Oakland, and across the bay was San Francisco. Between the two cities they could see the white ferry-boats on the water. Around to their right was Berkeley, and to their left the scattered villages between Oakland and San Leandro. Directly in the foreground was Piedmont, with its desolate dwellings and patches of farming land, and from Piedmont the land rolled down in successive waves upon Oakland.

"Look at it," said Daylight, extending his arm in a sweeping gesture. "A hundred thousand people there, and no reason there shouldn't be half a million. There's the chance to make five people grow where one grows now. Here's the scheme in a nutshell. Why don't more people live in Oakland? No good service with San Francisco, and besides, Oakland is asleep. It's a whole lot better place to live in than San Francisco. Now, suppose I buy in all the street railways of Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda, San Leandro, and the rest—bring them under one can shake a stick at. There's the Alameda and Contra Costa Land Syndicate, the Consolidated Street Railway, the Yerba Buena Ferry Company, the United Water Company, the Piedmont Realty Company, the Fairview and Potrero Hotel Company, and half a dozen more that I've got to refer to a notebook to remember. There's the Piedmont Laundry Farm, and Redwood Consolidated Quarries. Starting in with our quarry, I just kept a-going till I got them all. And there's the ship-building company I ain't got a name for yet. Seeing as I had to have ferry-boats, I decided to build them myself. They'll be done by the time the pier is ready for them."

"For months Daylight was buried in work. The outlay was terrific, and there was nothing coming in. Beyond a general rise in land values, Oakland had not acknowledged his intrusion on the financial scene. The city was waiting for him to show what he was going to do, and he lost no time about it. The best skilled brains on the market were hired by him for the different branches of the work. Initial mistakes he had no patience with, and he was determined to start right, as when he engaged Wilkinson, almost doubling his big salary, and brought him out from Chicago to take charge of the street railway organization. Night and day the road gangs toiled on the streets. And night and day pile-drivers hammered the big piles down into the mud of San Francisco Bay. The pier was to be three miles long, and the Berkeley hills were denuded of whole groves of mature eucalyptus for the piling."

But this money that flowed in upon him was immediately poured back into his other investments. The need for electric cars was so great that he installed his own shops for building them. But no matter what pressure was on Daylight, his Sundays he reserved for his riding in the hills. It was not the rainy winter weather, however, that brought these rides with Dede to an end. One Saturday afternoon in the office she told him not to expect to meet her next day, and when he pressed for an explanation—"I've sold Mab."

Daylight was speechless for the moment. Her act meant one of so many serious things that he couldn't classify it. It smacked almost of treachery. She might have met with financial disaster. It might be her way of letting him know she had seen enough of him. Or

"What's the matter?" he mumbled, to ask. "I couldn't afford to keep her with my forty-five dollars a ton," Dede answered. "My brother's expenses have been higher, as well, and I was driven to the conclusion that since I could not afford both, I'd better let the mare go and keep the brother."

"Who bought her?" he asked. "Dede's eyes flashed in the way long since familiar to him when she was angry. "Don't you dare buy her back for me," she cried. "And don't deny that that was what you had in mind."

"I wish you would reconsider, Miss Mason," he said softly. "Not alone for the mare's sake, but for my sake. Money don't cut any ice in this. For me to buy that mare wouldn't mean as much as it does to most men to send a bouquet of flowers or a box of candy to a young lady. There's nobody I feel chummy with except you, and you know how little we've chummed—once a week, if it didn't rain, on Sunday. I've grown kind of to depend on you. If you'd just let me buy her back—"

"No, no; I tell you no," Dede arose impatiently, but her eyes were moist with the memory of her pet. "Please

"What's the matter?" he mumbled, to ask. "I couldn't afford to keep her with my forty-five dollars a ton," Dede answered. "My brother's expenses have been higher, as well, and I was driven to the conclusion that since I could not afford both, I'd better let the mare go and keep the brother."

"Who bought her?" he asked. "Dede's eyes flashed in the way long since familiar to him when she was angry. "Don't you dare buy her back for me," she cried. "And don't deny that that was what you had in mind."

"I wish you would reconsider, Miss Mason," he said softly. "Not alone for the mare's sake, but for my sake. Money don't cut any ice in this. For me to buy that mare wouldn't mean as much as it does to most men to send a bouquet of flowers or a box of candy to a young lady. There's nobody I feel chummy with except you, and you know how little we've chummed—once a week, if it didn't rain, on Sunday. I've grown kind of to depend on you. If you'd just let me buy her back—"

"For months Daylight was buried in work. The outlay was terrific, and there was nothing coming in. Beyond a general rise in land values, Oakland had not acknowledged his intrusion on the financial scene. The city was waiting for him to show what he was going to do, and he lost no time about it. The best skilled brains on the market were hired by him for the different branches of the work. Initial mistakes he had no patience with, and he was determined to start right, as when he engaged Wilkinson, almost doubling his big salary, and brought him out from Chicago to take charge of the street railway organization. Night and day the road gangs toiled on the streets. And night and day pile-drivers hammered the big piles down into the mud of San Francisco Bay. The pier was to be three miles long, and the Berkeley hills were denuded of whole groves of mature eucalyptus for the piling."

Daylight was speechless for the moment. Her act meant one of so many serious things that he couldn't classify it. It smacked almost of treachery. She might have met with financial disaster. It might be her way of letting him know she had seen enough of him. Or

THE REAL VALUE OF YOUR FOOD

What You Eat Does Not Nourish You Unless It Is Digested.

One of the commonest ailments of the day is inability to derive benefit from the food taken. Food that does not digest is worse than wasted. A complaint frequently heard by doctors is that the food eaten does no good.

Food that fails to digest ferments. Gas forms in the stomach and the acids of fermentation cause heartburn. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are a digestive tonic and give new strength by enabling the blood to take up and profit by the food we eat. They double the value of the food to the body, increase the appetite, renew energy, vitality, snap and vigor.

Mrs. Curtis Sidle, of No. 71 West Larwill street, Wooster, Ohio, says: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People deserve the highest praise that can be given them. About eight years ago I was suffering greatly from indigestion and nervousness. I was sick for six years. My blood was in bad condition and I nothing that I ate agreed with me. I would have spells when my heart palpitated so that I would have to lie down. The constant suffering made me nervous and weak. Our doctor said 'no trouble was indigestion but he could not see that he helped me although I doctored with him for over two years. I was naturally discouraged and later when a friend urged me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People I bought a few boxes for a trial. In a few days I saw a great change. I found that I could eat without so much distress and began to feel better in every way. I took ten boxes of the pills and was cured."

Don't go about your treatment blindly but start today to cure your indigestion by using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. The experience of other sufferers has been that their stomach troubles disappeared as soon as the blood was made pure and rich.

Every sufferer from indigestion, gas on the stomach, acid stomach, catarrh of the stomach or nervous dyspepsia should read our booklet, "What to Eat and How to Eat." It is free upon postal card request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price $2.00 per box, six boxes $9.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. affirmation. "But if you would only play the lover-husband that way. And now I won't say another word," she added. "I've delivered a whole sermon."

She rested now, frankly and fairly, in the shelter of his arms, and both were oblivious to the gale that rushed past them in quicker and stronger blasts. The big downpour of rain had not yet come, but the mist-like squalls were more frequent. Daylight was openly perplexed, and he was still perplexed when he began to speak.

"You've left me no argument. I know I'm not the same man that came from Alaska. I couldn't hit the trail with the dogs as I did in them days. I'm soft in my muscles, and my mind's gone hard. I used to respect men. I despise them now. You see, I spent all my life in the open, and I reckon I'm an open-air man. Why, I've got the prettiest little ranch you ever laid eyes on up in Glen Ellen. That's where I collect stock for the brick-yard. You recollect handling the correspondence. I only laid eyes on the ranch that one time, and I so fell in love with it that I bought it there and then. I just rode around the hills, and was happy as a kid out of school. I'd be a better man living in the country. The city doesn't make me better. You're plumb right there. I know it. But suppose your prayer should be answered and I'd go clean broke and have to work for day's wages? Little I had nothing left but that little ranch, and was satisfied to grow a few chickens and scratch a living somehow—would you marry me then, Dede?"

"Why, we'd be together all the time!" she cried.

Then was the moment, among the trees, ere they began the descent of the hill, that Daylight might have drawn her closely to him and kissed her once. But he was too perplexed with the new thoughts she had put into his head to take advantage of the situation. He merely caught her by the arm and helped her over the rougher footing. At the edge of the grove he suggested that it might be better for them to part there, but she insisted that he accompany her as far as the house.

"Do you know," he said, "taking it by and large, it's the happiest day of my life. Dede, Dede, we've just got to get married. It's the only way, and trust to luck for it's coming out all right."

But the tears were threatening to rise in her eyes again, as she shook her head and turned and went up the steps.

husband. You could follow your own sweet will, and nothing would be too good for you. I'd give you everything your heart desired."

"Except yourself," she interrupted suddenly, almost sharply. "Don't you see?" she hurried on. "I could have far easier married the Elam Harshid fresh from Klondike when I first laid eyes on him long ago, than marry you sitting before me now."

He shook his head slowly. "The more you know and like a man the less you want to marry him. Familiarity breeds contempt—I guess that's what you mean."

"No, no," she cried, but before she could continue, a knock came on the door.

His eyes, quick with observation like an Indian's, darted about the room while she was out. The impression of warmth and comfort and beauty predominated, though he was unable to analyze it; while the simplicity delighted him—expensive simplicity, he decided, and most of it left-overs from the time her father went broke and died.

She re-entered the room, and as she crossed it to her chair, he admired the way she walked, while the bronze slippers were maddening.

"I'd like to ask you several questions," he began immediately. "Are you thinking of marrying somebody else?"

"There isn't anybody else. I don't know anybody I like well enough to marry. For that matter, I don't think I am a marrying woman. Office work seems to spoil me for that."

"It strikes me that you're the most marryingest woman that ever made a man sit up and take notice. And now another question. You see, I've just got to locate the lay of the land. Is there anybody you like as much as you like me?"

But Dede had herself well in hand. "That's unfair," she said. "And if you stop and consider, you will find that you are doing the very thing you disclaimed—namely, nagging. I refuse to answer any more of your questions. Let us talk about other things. How is Mab?"

Half an hour later, whirling along through the rain on Telegraph Avenue toward Oakland, Daylight smoked one of his brown-paper cigarettes and reviewed what had taken place. It was not at all bad, was his summing up, though there was much about it that was baffling. There was that liking him the more she knew him, and at

OHIO FORESTERS ARE AWAKENING TO BIG TIMBER LOSS

Ohio is being awakened to its enormous losses through the neglect of its woodlands and forest fires, and aroused to the necessity of rehabilitating its forests and providing against the future, by the forestry departments of the Ohio agricultural experiment station at Wooster.

Did you know that the second greatest natural asset of Ohio was its original forests? Not its coal, or natural gas, or oil, but its trees! So declares Charles B. Thorne, director of the station.

"To the pioneer farmer, however," Thorne explains, "the forest was but a lumberer of the ground, and his greatest problem was to get it out of the way. Now those who realize the loss suffered must overcome this inherent attitude of today and convince landowners of the potential value of the forest, and point out to them how
to restore part of their holdings to woodlands."

This is what the station, with its limited force, is trying to accomplish.
The station is already cooperating with the state institutions in guiding
their forestry operations and supplying them with trees, helping cities in planting shade trees properly, securing the cooperation of land owners in
a forestry survey of the state, working with private land owners in reforestation and carrying on a campaign of education.

"Oberlin was the first municipality to realize the advantage of the benefits afforded the water supply by forest protection," says Edward Severt, the station's forester. "The city has a ten-acre farm through which flows
the reservoir intake, a large spring.
Now the whole farm is being wooded
with great good to the water."

Severt points out the worst enemies
of the remaining Ohio forests as fires, which have devastated whole sections along railroads, especially in the southern part of Ohio, the insect called the leaf miner, catnip midge and sphinx moth, the white pine disease, and cattle browsing in woods.

"More men of technical training should be employed by the state to further the forestry work," says Severt. "A better system of fire protection should be established in certain sections, probably under the direction of the state are marshal. The state should establish forestry reserves.

"Caring for trees along all streets and highways should be taken from the private owners and given to the state or local authorities."

Severt also says the state should take immediate advantage of steps to conserve what water power sites it has.
Long rivers like the Walhonding, for instance. The recommendations have

CHAMPLAIN FUND KEPT SECRET BY SECRETARY KNOX

Was Used for Banquets, Wines and Flowers—Matter Before House Committee on Expenditures.

Washington, Jan. 26.—Should a National Guardsman pay $2.50 for lilies of the valley to present to the wife of a Canadian official and then ask Uncle Sam to pay the bill?

This is one of the questions which the House Committee on Expenditures in the State Department had put up to it when Secretary Knox presented the vouchers showing how $20,000 had been expended in the celebration of the three hundredth anniversary of the discovery of Lake Champlain in July, 1909.

When the Secretary of State was before the committee several days ago he declined to produce the vouchers covering the expenditure of this apporportion, contending that he had been forbidden by order of the President to make public any of the expenditures under the secret fund of the State Department. Later, however, he communicated with the President and obtained his permission to produce the vouchers.

He admitted that the practice which had been followed by the department in keeping secret appropriations made by Congress for specific purposes, on the ground that they were of a diplomatic nature, had been "loose" and that the method of accounting or failing to account for the Lake Champlain fund appropriation was "improper" and gave Chairman Hamlin of the committee, credit for calling the matter to his attention.

He further declared that since the matter had come under his observation there had been a reform instituted.

The appropriation was all accounted for in the vouchers of officials, but these vouchers showed that a part of the appropriation had been paid out for flowers, for wines, cocktails, tips to porters, special trains, regular railroad fare for Senator Root from Washington to Lake Champlain and return, including Pullman, and for the large banquets which were given in connection with the celebration.

Some of the vouchers show an item of $2.50 for flowers bought by a National Guardsman for the wife of a Canadian official; items for wine, cocktails and cafe meals for army officers; $5,360 for the entertainment of 200 guests at a Lake Champlain hotel, $3,748 for a banquet on July 6, $244 for a ladies' banquet, $75 for livery, $18 for telephones, $39.35 for Senator Root's transportation from Washington to Plattsburg and return. One item was for excess fares for five members of the New York Legislature who missed a train.

President Taft, Ambassador Bryce, Senator Root, Associate Justice Chas.
E. Hughes of the Supreme court, then Governor of New York, and other public men were guests at one entertainment.

It was said Governor Pruett of Vermont and other members of the commission might be invited to discuss the expenditures as accounted for in the vouchers.

Senator Knox said that hereafter all expense accounts would be scrutinized closely before their nature was kept from the public.

A woman is just as apt to wonder why a man swears when he gets mad as a man is to wonder why a woman weeps.

"To the pioneer farmer, however,"

a lumberer of the ground, and his
the way. Now those who realize the loss suffered must overcome this in-
to restore part of their holdings to
woodlands."

This is what the station, with its
limited force, is trying to accomplish.
The station is already cooperating
their forestry operations and supplying them with trees, helping cities in
planting shade trees properly, secur-
a forestry survey of the state, working with private land owners in reforestation and carrying on a campaign of education.

"Oberlin was the first municipality
to realize the advantage of the benefits afforded the water supply by forest protection," says Edward Severt,
the station's forester. "The city has
the reservoir intake, a large spring.
Now the whole farm is being wooded
with great good to the water."

Severt points out the worst enemies
of the remaining Ohio forests as fires, which have devastated whole sections
along railroads, especially in the southern part of Ohio, the insect called the
leaf miner, catnip midge and sphinx
moth, the white pine disease, and cattle browsing in woods.

should be employed by the state to
further the forestry work," says Se-
vert. "A better system of fire protection should be established in certain

ROOSEVELT AN ACTIVE CANDIDATE

Teddy Actually Throwing Off the Mask to Undermine President Taft.

Washington, Jan. 26.—A Republican member of congress from an eastern state, which is an important asset to the party, has received within the last few days, a letter from Theodore Roosevelt. The letter was written as a reply to one sent by the congressman himself, pledging his support to the colonel.

Colonel Roosevelt wrote that he was very glad to be assured of the friendly attitude of the congressman toward him and was also very glad to be informed of the same in his district. He added that he would be pleased to meet the congressman, and suggested that sometime when he was in New York he wished to have him go to lunch with him.

The Roosevelt letter did not say that he was not a candidate.
This is probably the most significant feature of the campaign.
It has left no doubt in the mind of the man who received the letter, that Roosevelt is a receptive, if not an active candidate; neither was there anything to the effect that Col.
Roosevelt wouldn't accept a nomination.

That Col. Roosevelt's political correspondence is assuming large proportions is the impression of many Washington Republicans, who constantly hear stories of the letters the colonel has written to this man or that.

No letter thus far reported has ever contained the statement that the colonel would not take the Republican nomination if it should be offered to him.

BOOST HIM IN ILLINOIS.

Chairman Dewey and His Friends Are At Work for the Colonel.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—With Chauncey Dewey, state committeeman of the first congressional district, acting as state chairman of the organization, the Roosevelt committee restored to an active campaign for delegates to the Republican national convention. The Illinois delegates-at-large are the special game that the Roosevelt boosters are after. In addition they will make fights for delegates in all the districts.

This plan of campaign was mapped out at a meeting of the recently organized executive committee, and it has been recommended to Roosevelt boosters in the other states.
"The sentiment which has developed and which has reached us since we announced that the Roosevelt movement had been initiated, convinces me that Illinois is to be for Roosevelt," said Chairman Dewey.
"We expect that there will be a majority in the Republican state convention favorable to instruction of the eight delegates-at-large for Roosevelt. It seems pretty certain too, that the congressional district conventions will either instruct for Roosevelt or prevent instructions for anyone else."

The organization has already outgrown its rooms at the Congress Hotel and more commodious quarters were opened today at the LaSalle.

OSBORNE FOR "TEDDY."

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 26.—Governor Osborne, in answering a query from the New York Times yesterday announces himself for Roosevelt for president. In the message the governor said: "I am for Roosevelt for president first, last and all the time.
Roosevelt sentiment predominates in Michigan."

Even in a clock factory it is necessary to enforce the rules, in spite of the fact that everything goes.

MAN'S VANITY.

Old Jimpson's whiskers jolt the town.
He tries to dye the blamed things brown, but often gets a blinided green that has a hard, metallic sheen. Cap Brick is spavined, old and fat, and yet he wears a rah-rah hat and noisy neckties and his clothes outshine the hollyhock and rose. Judge Boggs is bald, but has a hedge of scurred hair around the edge; he combs that auburn hair across to try and hide the total loss.
These men are great and faithful friends, and often, when the day's toil ends, they sit and talk, and they're agreed that what this country's women need is judgment masculine and sane—the girls are so absurdly vain!

They paint and pad in fifty ways, and bind themselves in iron stays, and put feet hobbles on their feet, and screech like horses in the street. They care not that they're jeered and mocked, that Jimpson, Nick and Boggs are shocked!

IMPROVEMENTS CAUSE BOOST IN PHONE RATES

Petition From New Concord Asks Permission From State Board to Make the Increase.

Columbus, O., Jan. 26.—One of the most important cases which has come under the jurisdiction of the public service commission since its creation is that of the petition of the New Concord Telephone Co., filed today, asking that it be allowed to increase its rates from 50 to 66 2-3 per cent. The commission may be obliged to establish a precedent declaring what is a just rate of return on investment.

The amount of money involved is not large, but the ratio upon which the commission decides, doubtless will be applied to millions. The New Concord company is capitalized at $10,000, with $3,400 issued. The company is charging $12 for a business line and $9 for a house phone.
It asks the commission for permission to issue $600 worth of stock in order to make a few improvements, and also to raise the cost of the business telephone to $18 and the residence line to $15.

Improvements the Cause.
Zanesville, O., Jan. 26.—"The increase in the rates is made necessary by the improvements the company is making to improve the service," said J. B. Rhodes of this city, secretary and treasurer of the New Concord company last night.

"When the company started some years ago with 20 subscribers, it was purely a local concern, and the back-ers never expected to get over 30 subscribers. But business has increased until at present there are 250 patrons.
The company intends to institute a two-party line service, and to keep the exchange open all night and on Sundays and naturally the expense of operating will be much greater."

The company is now charging monthly rates of 75 cents for residence and $1 for business 'phones.
The two party line service will increase these to $1 and $1.25. Main line service will cost $15 and $18.
There will be no change in the rates of country subscribers which is $1 a month.

"The new switchboard bought some time ago is being installed and the company believes that the new service will be ready to start either March 1 or April 1. The rates for New Concord as increased, will be just the same as patrons in Dresden, Crooksville, Roseville and other towns of similar size are paying, and the company believes that the patrons will see the justice of the increase."

NO PAY FOR TROOPS, MEN REVOLT AND GOVERNOR FLEES

Peking, Jan. 26.—The troops in the garrison at Shan Tze as well as the soldiers of the city revolted and demolished the headquarters of the government, because they had not received their pay. The governor has fled.

Shang Hai, China, Jan. 26.—Sharp fighting has occurred on the railroad from Tsin to Pukow. The imperial troops came into contact with the rebels miles south of St. Chow. The result of the battle is not known.

Kulja, Chinese Turkestan, Jan. 26.— The imperial government troops which came into contact with revolutionary forces at Talpas, went over to the rebel side without the striking of a shot. Their combined force is now advancing on the city of Yurampai.

WORLD'S CONSUMPTION OF BUNKER COAL

The suggestion that the opening of the Panama Canal may render feasible the establishment of a great American station for supplying coal from the mines of the United States to vessels of the world lends interest to an estimate prepared by the bureau of statistics, department of commerce and labor, of the coal consumption on the oceans of the world.
The statement estimates the coal consumed on the oceans of the world at approximately 75,000,000 tons per annum, valued at over $250,000,000.

An exact statement of the quantity of coal consumed by the merchant marines and navies of the world can not be made, owing to the fact that comparatively few countries state in separate terms the quantity of coal supplied to vessels for their own use or for "bunkering" purposes. The United States statistics show about 4,000,000 long tons supplied to vessels at ocean ports to be placed in their bunkers for their own use and the British reports show about 20-000,000 long tons supplied to vessels in the foreign trade and 2,500-000 tons to vessels in the coastwise trade. This would make for the two great coal-producing countries of the world—the United States and the United Kingdom—a total of over 20,000,000 tons supplied directly to vessels for "bunkering" purposes.
In addition to this however, a very considerable percentage of the coal sent out of Great Britain, as "exports" passes to ports and stations in various parts of the world from which it is finally supplied to ocean vessels for fuel purposes.

Kisses seldom demonstrate that a man is too proud to beg, or too honest to steal.

RUSSELL B. TIPPETT.

Russell B. Tippet, whose death occurred several days ago at his home on Belle street, in Columbus, was born Jan. 7, 1856, in Jersey township, Licking county, being the youngest son of Daniel and Elizabeth Tippet. He leaves his widow, who before her marriage was Ida May Speer, and the following children: Fred C., of Johnstown; Mrs. Abbie Pilkington, Otis, Clay, Mrs. Maude Pilkington of Gambier; Grover, Mrs.
Francis Frazee, Marie and Opal.
Two children died in infancy. He also leaves 11 grandchildren, two brothers and three sisters.

MR. CHARLES R. GIDDY.

Mr. James H. Smith, traveling freight and passenger agent for the Panhandle Railroad Company, received word that his old friend, Mr.
Charles R. Giddy of St. Louis, had died very suddenly at his home in Webster Groves, Mo., on Sunday. The deceased was well known in Newark and is still well remembered by many of the older citizens. In 1876 he was married to Miss Emma Hager daughter of Wm. L. Hager of this city, who previously to the Civil War, was local freight agent here for the old Ohio Central railroad and who also held a similar position with the Baltimore and Ohio railroad at Sandusky for many years. Mr. Giddy was, for 34 years, general sales agent for Mills and Gibbs, importers, having charge of the States of Missouri and Kansas. He was very popular and was well liked by the trade and by all with whom he came in contact.
His old time friends in Newark will regret to learn of his death.

MRS. JOHN DOE.

Mrs. John Doe, wife of a well known farmer, residing one mile west of Fredonia, died at her home at an early hour Friday morning after an illness of some time. The deceased was well known in Newark, she and her husband having conducted the Franklin hotel, this city at one time. She is survived by her husband and one son. The body will be shipped to Derby, O., Saturday evening and the funeral services held at the home of Vinnie Baughan, a brother-in-law of the deceased, of that place on Sunday. Interment will be made in Pleasant cemetery.

MRS. DAVID S. DAVIES.

Of all that numerous company who emigrated from Wales and settled in Granville in the first half of the Nineteenth century, only two remained until Monday of last week, when the venerable Mrs. David S. Davies of Mc-Kean township, passed away in her eighty-ninth year. The last surviving member of that pioneer band is the aged Mrs. Jones, who lives with her daughter on the Jersey road, and she is ninety years of age.

Mrs. Davies' maiden name was Catherine Thomas and she was born at Ystrad in Cardiganshire on August 5, 1823. She emigrated to America in 1841 and lived for a while in Oneida county, New York. The old Welsh family Bible which was handed to me, certifies that Catherine Thomas was united in marriage in 1842 to David S. Davies "at the house of Thomas King Jones" (father of Mr. Orfel C.
Jones of Newark.) The newly wedded couple immediately settled in the house which was to be their home for the remainder of their days. Mrs.
Davies therefore lived on the same place for sixty-nine years until the "new farm" had become the old farm, and the stately walnuts had given place to a different order of trees.

She passed away on January 15 and the funeral services were conducted at the old homestead on January 17th, the writer officiating. Though the ways were hard to travel, a great company of people filled the spacious house, and it was easy to estimate the respect in which the dear old mother was held by all the community. I learned after the service what she was termed the "grandmother" of the 23rd O. V. I. and six members of the company acted as pall bearers. She leaves two sons, Stephen and Mowry, besides ten grandchildren and two great grandchildren. Her body rests in the old Welsh Hills cemetery among so many of her kindred who lived the same brave life and departed in the same invincible faith.

J. MORRISTON THOMAS.

FUNERAL OF MRS. A. R. WHIT- STONE.

The body of Mrs. A. R. Whitstone, who died at the Sanitarium Thursday morning, was taken to Letart Falls, O., Friday morning, where the funeral services were held and where the interment was made.

FUNERAL OF MISS EVA TAYLOR.

The funeral services over the remains of the late Miss Eva Taylor, were held at the home of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Taylor on Fulton avenue Friday morning at 10 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. Mr.
Holcombe after which the body was taken to Thornville and interred in the cemetery there.

IRON TRADE REVIEW.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 26.—The Iron Trade Review today says:
The week has brought forth some interesting developments, but the trend of the market is not altogether favorable. Since general conditions are quieter, Eastern ship builders are quietly figuring upon new boat inquiries of large size, the steel requirements of which may reach 60,000 tons.
The active market abroad has recently enabled eastern Pennsylvania plate makers to invade the Scottish field. A soaring ocean freight market, however, bids fair to cut short such exportation. Some sizeable sales of basic iron have been made in western Pennsylvania at $14.25, delivered, more clearly determining the price of this grade.
The iron market as a whole is quiet.
Westinghouse interests are inquiring for 7000 to 12,000 tons for delivery during the last half of the year.

In spite of the higher mathematics a man doesn't have to be square to be cornered.

S.S.S. RIDES THE SYSTEM OF CATARRH

Catarrh is a blood disease which causes a general inflammation of the inner linings or mucous membranes of the body. The diseasing of these delicate surfaces and tissues produces all the well known symptoms of the trouble, such as ringing noises in the head and ears, tight, stuffy feeling in the nose, pains above the eyes, irritation of the throat, sometimes slight fever, and a general feeling of weakness and ill health. Even the lungs become affected by the continual passage of impure blood through them, and there is danger of consumption if the disease is allowed to remain in the system. S. S. S. cures Catarrh because it purifies the blood. It goes into the circulation and removes every particle of the catarrhal matter, making this vital fluid pure, rich and healthy. Then the inflamed membranes begin to heal, every symptom disappears, the constitution is built up and health restored. S. S. S. rides the system of catarrh by attacking the trouble at its head and entirely removing the cause from the blood, thus making a permanent and lasting cure. S. S. S. is made entirely from health-giving roots, herbs and barks, and for this reason is an especially safe and desirable medicine.

TARR-MORSE

The following notice of the marriage of Mr. Charles M. Tarr taken from the Harvard (Ill.) Independent will be of interest here:

Charles M. Tarr and Miss Gladys Morse were united in marriage at Christ church rectory in this city last Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. Rev. H. S. Linnell officiating. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Morse and is numbered among the well known and popular young ladies of this city. CLAIMS MONEY CONCENTRATED IN NEW YORK Washington, Jan. 25.—The house committee on rules today resumed its hearing on the resolution for a special inquiry into the money trust with Samuel Undermyer as a witness. Undermyer said he favored the investigation provided. "It is conducted in a conservative, systematic, painstaking, non-partisan spirit with the sole object of the investigation to establish a systematic basis for constitutional legislation." He said the investigation would establish that the present financial condition is due to the concentration of funds of the great corporations in New York City.

WORLD'S CHAMPS IN BASKETBALL HERE FEB. 13TH

With ten clean victories to the credit of the Newark "Y" team dual preparations are now being made for the big game of the season when the Buffalo Germans come in February for a game with the local team. This team is the fastest ever booked for a game in Newark and though the "Y" team has defeated all comers, the result of this game is not so sure.

The players with the Champs are professionals of much experience. They will no doubt have basketball tricks not seen in the ordinary game and Newark will be called upon to play its best game to get away with a victory. Manager Reinbold's men are working hard to get into shape for the big contest.

Only enough tickets will be sold to fill the hall comfortably and when this number, about 400 is sold, there will be no further opportunity to get tickets. Members of the team now have the tickets for sale, from whom they may be purchased.

NOTED LECTURER AT HIGH SCHOOL

Dr. Winslow of Boston, Mass., delivered a lecture at the High School Auditorium this afternoon and will lecture again this evening. These lectures are a part of the institute which in the past few years has been reconstructed. This afternoon Dr. Winslow lectured on "The Rescuing of Rascals." This evening's subject will be "The School and Its Critics." Dr. Winslow is the editor of the Journal of Education, one of the highest teachers' papers in the country.

EVEN THE MOST STUBBORN COLD EASILY BROKEN

There is not one grain of quinine in Pope's Cold Compound, which, when taken every two hours, until three consecutive doses are taken, will surely end the gripe and break up the most severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, stomach or limbs.

If promptly relieved the most miserable headache, dullness, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, running of the nose, catarrhal affections, soreness, stiffness and rheumatic twinges.

Pope's Cold Compound is the result of three years' research at a cost of more than fifty thousand dollars, and contains no quinine, which we have conclusively demonstrated is not effective in the treatment of colds or gripe.

Take this harmless Compound as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine made anywhere else in the world which will cure your cold or end Gripe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad after-effects as a 25 cent package of Pope's Cold Compound, which any druggist in the world can supply.

Mutilated By Blast

Cambridge, Jan. 25.—While lamping powder for a shot in Forsyth's mine, east of here, Andrew Visokay, aged 29, struck the cap and exploded the charge. Both eyes were torn from their sockets and his body was terribly mutilated. He cannot recover.

WHEN MARK TWAIN COINED HIS NAME

In Harper's for February, Albert Bigelow Paine, the authorized biographer of Mark Twain, tells how the great humorist first really adopted the name when writing for a Nevada newspaper in 1863.

"He was not altogether satisfied. His letters, copied and quoted all along the coast, were unsigned. They were easily identified with one another but not with a personality. He realized that to build a reputation it was necessary to fasten it to an individuality—a name.

"He gave the matter a good deal of thought. He did not consider the use of his own name; the nom de plume was the fashion of the time. He wanted something brief, crisp, definite, unforgettable. He tried over a good many combinations in his mind, but none seemed convincing. Just then—this was early in 1863—news came to him that the old pilot he had wounded by his satire, Isaiah Sellers, was dead. At once the pen name of Captain Sellers recurred to him. That was it—that was the sort of name he wanted. It was not trivial, it had all the qualities; Sellers would never forget it again. Clemens decided he would give it a new meaning and new association in this far-away land. He went up to Virginia City.

"Joe," he said to Goodman, "I want to sign my articles. I want to be identified to a wider audience." "All right, Sam. What name do you want to use—Josh?" "No, I want to sign them 'Mark Twain.' It is an old river term, a leadman's call, signifying two fathoms—twelve feet. It has a richness about it; it was always a pleasant sound for a pilot to hear on a dark night; it meant safe water."

"It was first signed to a Carson letter bearing date of February 2, 1863, and from that time was attached to all Samuel Clemens' work. The work was neither better nor worse than before, but it had suddenly acquired identification and special interest. Members of the Legislature and friends in Virginia and Carson immediately began to address him as 'Mark.' The papers of the east took it up, and within a period to be measured by weeks he was no longer 'Sam' or 'Clemens' or 'that bright chap on the Enterprise' but 'Mark Twain.' No nom de plume was ever so quickly and generally accepted as that. He quitted, returning from the east after an absence of several months, found his room and desk mate with the distinction of a new name and fame."

LECTURERS GREETED BY EMPLOYEES

B. and O. Men Crowd Taylor Hall to Capacity to Listen to Members of Safety Committee

In an effort to reduce the number of injuries and fatalities on the B. and O. system, the management has instituted a series of lectures at the division terminals of the road, the first in Newark being held at Taylor Hall, Y. M. C. A. Thursday evening. At this lecture General Manager A. W. Thompson and a number of other high officials of the road delivered talks urging the employees of the road to co-operate in the movement to minimize the number of accidents.

Taylor Hall was crowded. Every seat was filled and a hundred or more late-comers were compelled to stand in the rear of the hall. Officials who have been with the General Safety Committee state that this was the largest and most interesting of six meetings of a similar nature held in the past week at Pittsburg, New Castle, Cleveland and other points along the system. They were highly gratified at the turnout and the employees present representing the Newark division, were complimentary for their record in the past six months, during which time but one employee has met death on the division.

The General Safety Committee, consisting of a half dozen of the Baltimore officials, has been making an educational trip over the system. The party travels in a private car and it was joined here yesterday by General Manager Thompson, who made the chief address. He was introduced to the audience by W. T. Egan, who is chairman of the safety committee of the Newark division.

Mr. Thompson said in part: "Our system has about 63,000 employees on the pay roll and it is the aim of the management to impress upon the minds of these employees that it is important that action be taken towards the safeguarding of life and limb.

"Personal injuries to employees of the road have been on the increase in the past two or three years in spite of the fact that safety appliances have been introduced in every shop. "Precautions have been taken ever since the road was built 85 years ago and as the list of employees increases, naturally there are more personal injuries, but the increase has been too great recently.

"The company must look to the co-operation of the employees and act upon their suggestions to reduce the percentage of injuries. Under the present system all injuries are reported to the proper official.

"Statistics show that on the roads of the country an employee is killed every 50 minutes and one is injured every five minutes of each day. On our system an employee is injured every 48 minutes. In the fiscal year ending with June 1911, 10,577 employees were injured while 179 were killed. We hear much about the conservation of forests, natural resources etc., but we hear little regarding the conservation of our men. It is the aim of this movement, instituted a few months ago, to conserve the men and to minimize the number of personal injuries.

"Many of the accidents are due to carelessness or thoughtlessness on the part of the employees. When an engine is injured or damaged, it can be sent to the shop for repairs, but we can't do that with the men. "The adoption of safety appliances has failed to reduce the number of injuries like the management wishes so we must look to other means to protect our employees.

"The employees on the ground constantly are in a position to observe the causes of accidents and to them the management must look to find ways and means to abolish the danger. We hope by this movement to reduce the number of injuries 50 per cent in the next year. If this is accomplished we can save the lives of 70 men and injuries to 6,000. We will not save lives and limbs but we will save money for the company as well as other employees."

The employees for a moment from the subject of his talk to assure the employees that the company was not opposed to organization among the men. He recalled that the B. and O. was one of the first to make contracts with labor organizations.

He told the employees that the railroad was after all, merely a manufacturing concern, that it manufactured and sold freight ton miles and passenger miles.

In closing his talk, Mr. Thompson forcibly impressed upon the minds of the men that the company did not ask nor expect any of the employees to take any chance that might result in a personal injury and urged the men not to take such a chance.

A. H. Boyd, chairman of the General Safety Committee, who is Assistant general attorney for the road, in his talk, stated that the accidents which resulted in personal injury were divided into two classes, avoidable and unavoidable. The latter, he said, needed no attention as they were beyond the power of human prevention.

He detailed the causes of avoidable accidents, calling attention to structures being too near the tracks, overhead perils and waste material along the tracks, which might cause an employee to stumble and fall. He detailed at length, careless acts on the part of employees that resulted in injuries. He said that in the future, every machine bought by the company would be equipped with the most improved safety appliances, this being the company's part in the movement towards the safety of the men. He said that but 22 persons were killed in train accidents, collisions, wrecks, etc., and that the

HEART AND HOME TALKS BY BARBARA BOYD

One Way to Conquer Worry.

LET'S take a little scrutiny of that word "worry," and see if, when we know it in all its parts, we can't banish it.

It has the upper hand of many of us now, and is driving us with the lash of a slave-driver. We are cowed and helpless before it. But if we will take our courage in our hands, get a scalpel, and begin to dissect this worry, we may find we are letting ourselves be pursued by a bogie, which after all, has no parts.

Worry comes from a Dutch word, "Worgen," to throttle. And therein lies its whole power. We let it throttle us. We let it choke our courage, or our faith, or our self-reliance, and then we are a helpless figure before it. It has us, and we are weak, dismayed, cowed.

Worry seizes us about money matters, and instantly we are in a panic. It throttles the power to do. We can't think calmly or decide wisely. All we see is failure. As soon as we worry, we shut off instantly the ability to recover ourselves financially. It weakens and disheartens us. But if we refuse to worry, if we turn on this bogie and vanquish it, if we do not let it lay its paralyzing hand on us, we can begin instantly to think of ways and means to recoup. Hope energizes us. We begin at once to plan new lines of work.

Or perhaps it is gossip of some misconduct on the part of a member of the family that reaches us, and worry seizes us. We can't breathe. We scarcely seem able to live, so strong and relentless is the grasp of this seeming fiend. In this condition, we are utterly unable to give needed aid to the one who is beginning to stray, the aid perhaps that would bring him back before he has wandered far into forbidden paths.

We do not understand, perhaps, just this physical power of worry. Though we know it injures us, it has seemed some intangible thing that we could not free ourselves from.

But its intangibility becomes tangible in this actual physical effect that renders us incapable of doing our best. Just as throttling us shuts off our blood and makes us limp and weak, so worry shuts off the life-blood of the spirit, and leaves us faint and trembling. So with this understanding of it, we should fight it, the same as we would fight any disease standing off to lay us low. We must fight it in its own field, the mental; but now that we know where to centre the fight, victory may be ours.

When something happens that is a worry-breeder, we must turn a resolute face first upon worry itself. We must know that though it is immaterial, it can fasten itself upon us like a material thing and drain all energy, all courage, all power to do. We must fight it valiantly, knowing that once vanquished, we will be left with courage undaunted, and mind undimmed to handle the real problem that is pressing for solution. And if clear-eyed and cool-headed, we can settle it successfully.

Barbara Boyd.

Her Beautiful Eyes
James Whitcomb Riley

her beautiful eyes! they are blue as the dew On the violet's bloom when the morning is new And the light of their love is the gleam of the sun O'er the meadows of Spring where the quick shadows run As the morn shifts the mists and the clouds from the skies—So I stand in the dawn of her beautiful eyes.

And her beautiful eyes are as mid-day to me When the lily-bell bends with the weight of the bee.
And the throat of the thrush is a pulse in the heat And the senses are drugged with the subtle & sweet And delicious breaths of the air's lullabies—So I swoon in the noon of her beautiful eyes.

her beautiful eyes! they have smitten mine own As a glory glanced down from the glare of the Throne;
And I reel, and I falter and fall, as afar Fell the shepherds that looked on the mystical Star And yet dazed in the tidings that bade them arise—So I grope through the night of her beautiful eyes.

"ALL ALONE"

When Jones was living, he was wild And fast as he could be.
He left his wife all alone Most every night, you see.

But when Jones died, he left his wife
A half a million cold,

SAGE TEA WILL DARKEN FADED AND GRAY HAIR

There is nothing new about the idea of using sage for restoring the color of the hair. Our great-grandmothers kept their locks soft, dark and glossy by using a "sage tea." Whenever their hair fell out or took on a dull, faded or streaked appearance they made a brew of sage leaves and applied it to their hair, with wonderfully beneficial effect.

Nowadays we don't have to resort to old-time, tiresome methods of gathering the herbs and making the tea. This is done by skilled chemists better than we could do it ourselves and all we have to do is to call for the ready-made product, Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, containing sage in the proper strength, with the addition of sulphur, another old-time, scalp remedy.

The manufacturers of this remedy authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

Don't neglect your hair. Get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur today, and notice the difference after a few days' use.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

THANK YOU, SIR.

(Communicated.) I find your new local department "Where They Are Now" to be exceedingly interesting and I hope you will continue to print from day to day items about former Newark people. Often times I find myself wondering where so and so who formerly lived here now is and wondering what he or she is doing. If the people who read the Advocate will act upon your suggestion to send in to your paper paragraphs telling of ex-Newarkites it will help to make this department of continued interest and at the same time it will place these former Newark folks to know that they are not forgotten by their old home town. Long live the "Where They Are Now" department.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

When a Little Prince Gets a Fine Gift

It's nice to get presents, isn't it, daddy? Evelyn said as she came upstairs with the forefinger of her right hand poked admiringly forward. On that finger shone a little silver ring set with blue hearts. It was a gift from Aunt Mary. Jack wore a pin to match in his tie and eyed it with equal joy. These treasures had been bought in Europe and brought across the ocean for her nephew and niece when Aunt Mary came home from her trip abroad.

"It's lovely to get presents," replied daddy fondly as his thoughts wandered to the lovely book of prints that Aunt Mary had brought him, "but it's lovely to have a nice Aunt Mary and Uncle John to bring them to us."

"So it is," answered Jack, "but if a fellow gets the presents, why should he care who gives them?"

"We should value gifts on account of the givers," said daddy.

"If you were a little prince, Jack, and if Evelyn were a little princess you would not get so much fun out of your gifts."

"There is the little Prince and the little Princess, who is fifteen years old. When his grandfather, King Melnik, dies he is likely to be king of Abyssinia, a country in Africa about twice as large as the state of California. A short time ago Emperor William of Germany sent the young prince a handsome hunting rifle. It was set with gold and precious stones, for the people of Abyssinia have a taste for gay things. Of course if some one gave you a gun, Jack, you would want to go out and shoot with it, but the little Abyssinian prince had his taken away from him and placed in some place where it may be seen, but not used."

"The same thing no doubt happened to the little emperor of China when the czar of Russia, with an eye to making the future ruler of China his friend, sent the little fellow a wonderful toy railway outfit. The railway was accepted, and thanks were sent to the czar in the emperor's name, but no doubt the costly toy was put carefully away by the little boy's guardian where he can look at it, but alas, never handle."

"The president of France to make himself agreeable to the king of Italy gave the king's children a doll city, a charming toy and very, very costly. The little Italian prince and his sisters, who have for everyday use toys of the simplest kind, were shown the gift, but beyond being told it belonged to them they have likely never had a chance to play with it."

"Royal children may get more costly gifts than ordinary children, but it seems to me that the little boy or girl who has just plain toys that are not too good to handle every day is much better off."

PENSIONS FOR WIDOWS.

The widow left with a family to support should be pensioned by the government. A man carries a gun for his nation. If he is injured in war he receives a pension in recognition of the service he has rendered to his country. He feels no humiliation when the money is proffered him and in many cases is only too ready to apply to the state for it if he has not been recognized. A woman risks her life for her country, her children grow up to serve the nation, and why, when this woman gives so much to the world, should she not when left destitute receive as much as the man who goes to war?—Mrs. Clarence Burns.

BOARD OF TRADE MEMBERS
OF FEDERAL BLDG. LOCATION

The Newark Board of Trade members were today asked by circular letter to express their choice of a dozen pieces of property offered as site for the proposed Federal Building in Newark.

The Sherwood site was acquired by the government several years ago when the appropriation for ground and building was limited to $90,000, but the appropriation has since been increased to $190,000.

In order to learn the opinion of Newark people upon the question of location, the Board of Trade is sending to its 650 members a circular letter asking for an expression of opinion upon a postcard enclosed with the letter. The circular reads as follows:

"To the Members of Newark Board of Trade:

"Washington dispatches say that the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury has announced that the government officials favor construction of Newark's new Federal Building upon the Sherwood site on South First street, this conclusion being based upon two facts: (1) The selection of another site would mean a loss of several thousand dollars to the government; (2) a larger and more ornate building can be erected upon the Sherwood site, which the government owns, than was originally planned.

"Several other locations for the proposed postoffice building have been offered since the government's appropriation was increased from $90,000 to $190,000 and many now contend that the new building should be located upon a site more conveniently reached, and declare the people of Newark would be better satisfied and Newark's interests better served if a more convenient location were chosen and that Newark would prefer to have, if necessary, several thousand dollars taken off the ornamentation of the building and placed in location.

"The directors of the Board of Trade have authorized the publication of this circular letter, which is being sent to all members, with a request for an expression of opinion. Upon the accompanying post card may be found a list of the several sites offered to the government, together with the size and price. You are urged to express your choice of location upon the attached card by placing an X mark in the space to the left of that location which you believe will be the best for Newark. Sign your name in the blank space provided and your vote will be sent to Congressman W. A. Ashbrook, who will submit the Board of Trade vote to the Secretary of the Treasury.

"The government officials will be asked to accept the site that is favored by the majority of members, as a vote of this organization should indicate clearly the choice of Newark as a whole. No vote will be considered unless it is signed by a Board of Trade member.

"In order that your vote may be recorded, vote now and drop the enclosed card into the mail at once.

"Yours truly,
"NEWARK BOARD OF TRADE."

The post card enclosed with each circular letter reads as follows:

Members Newark Board of Trade.

Read the accompanying circular letter, place an X mark before your choice of location, for the proposed Newark Federal Building, sign your name, and mail this card today, if you please:

AMUSEMENTS

Press Agent Says:

Henrietta Crossman tonight. Don't devote all your time and attention to the children, and let "hubby" run wild and hunt for his own amusement, is the lesson of "The Real Thing," the comedy that Henrietta Crossman will present at the Auditorium tonight.

"The Real Thing" comes direct from its New York engagement at the Maxine Elliott Theatre where it stayed for some months and was conceded the biggest success on Broadway. This play, which is by far the most appealing that Henrietta Crossman has ever had, tells the story of a young wife, who, before her marriage, was a champion tennis player, a singer, a good dresser and an all round good fellow. She fascinated her lover by these very accomplishments and after they were married and children came she ceased to do the very things he liked in her the most.

Then the husband met a girl. The girl was glad to see him and he was so pleased to have some one pay some attention to him, that one day he kissed the girl and was caught by his sister-in-law. Bu. she being a sensible

Thomas Jefferson As "Rip Van Winkle."

The mantle of Joseph Jefferson, whose memory is now cherished as the past grand master of the stage, gracefully falls from the shoulders of the departed dean to his successor, Thos. Jefferson, his eldest actor son, and it is with pleasure, it is noted, that it remains in the family. Joseph Jefferson got it from his forefathers, beginning with the first Thomas Jefferson of Garrick's time, and he has often expressed the wish that the present Thomas Jefferson should hold the distinction. Thomas Jefferson of these times is the earnest one of the dean's sons. He realizes the value of his father's creation of Rip Van Winkle. In a letter to his son Thomas, Joseph Jefferson said:

"Remember, ability and early success are of but little use without honest, earnest and conscientious endeavor. Actors who merely play for their

THE ORPHEUM.

Three capacity houses greeted the new bill at the Arcade theatre yesterday and every patron seemed more than pleased. The Carr Trio, in their singing, talking and dancing specialties proved a big treat. The act consists of Mr. and Mrs. Carr and their tiny son Clifford, who is billed as America's greatest child comedian. Every member has an excellent voice and every song number was heartily applauded, especially when Master Clifford entertains with a very pleasing parody which is full of good comedy. Mrs. Carr introduces some very pretty costumes and excellent steps in skirt and toe dancing. Every child in the city should see Master Clifford, as he is especially pleasing to the little ones. Bjostow and Warner in their comedy skit entitled, "Marry's Birthday," were a decided success, and introduced plenty of good clean comedy and sensational balancing tricks throughout their entire act, proving to be one of the most pleasing novelty acts that has appeared at the Orpheum for some time. May Spurling in character changes and songs pleased with her neat little specialty. The Warricks opened at the matinee yesterday to a great disadvantage, as all their scenery and paraphernalia through misconnections, did not arrive in time to be used, so they did the best they could without it and made good. A decided difference was appreciated at the evening performance, after the baggage arrived, as they proved to have a fine line of tricks and surprises accomplished by their trick house. The Orpheumscope has an excellent licensed picture, a very interesting love story. Kindly note that the Orpheum will positively have five reels of latest licensed pictures next Sunday. Admission 10c to all.

FORMER PRESIDENT
INDIANA RAILWAY
SUED FOR DIVORCE

Chicago, Jan. 26.—William J. Henley, former president of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad, was sued for divorce here by Sarah A. Henley. The bill contains statutory charges and an allegation of desertion.

Mrs. Henley charges that during the months of June and July, 1909, Henley was almost constantly in the company of a woman of questionable character. She says he deserted her May 1, 1909, just six days after the twenty-fourth anniversary of their marriage.

Henley's residence is at 65656 Harvard avenue. The couple were married in 1885. They have four children, two of whom, Gladys and William, are under age.

Mrs. Henley alleges that her husband has an estate of about $100,000 and a large income from his law practice.

Henley came into notice in May, 1910, when he was indicted on a charge that he embezzled $28,000 from the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad while he was president. The money part of a total of $212,000, was turned over to Henley by John C. Fetzner, acting as agent of the road.

GIRL STUDENTS
CLAIMS DOCTOR

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 26.—That every female student of the Western Kentucky State Normal School who had been examined by her was possessed of a hookworm was a bit of information given by Dr. Lillian South, state bacteriologist, in the course of the investigation of the affairs of the state board of health.

Representative L. B. Herrington, whose bill introduced in the house provides for a reorganization of the health board, examined the witnesses. An effort was made to show that Dr. South was receiving other salaries than paid her by the state and amounting to $200 per month. The effort was a signal failure, as it was shown that she received but $300 in addition to her regular salary from outside sources, and this from extra work done in helping edit a medical journal published at Bowling Green.

The witness denied that she had done any lobbying at previous sessions of the legislature. She came to Frankfort on one occasion simply to watch the wheels of legislation revolve, and the visit was a revelation to her, she said.

Dr. South advised against the removal of laboratories from Bowling Green to Frankfort, asserting the work of warring on the "hookworm" would meet greater success by retaining the present location, as normal students got the direct benefit of demonstrations. Quizzed concerning her familiarity with the hookworm, Dr. South stated that she first saw one in the laboratories in Philadelphia in 1904, before her appointment as state bacteriologist. The investigation will be continued next Tuesday.

DIVORCE

Sought by Morganatic Widow of Belgian Monarch Who Married M. Emile Durrieux.

Paris, Jan. 26.—The Baroness Vaughan, who was the morganatic wife of the late King of Belgium, had a twelve minute hearing in the French courts to plead her case for divorce against M. Emile Durrieux, whom she married soon after the ruler's death. M. Durrieux has long been a well-known frequenter of gambling houses, and for years before Leopold's death he was intimate with the Baroness Vaughan.

Mme. Durrieux's counsel, in a brief speech, rehearsed the story of her wrongs. He related how, on the day after their marriage, Durrieux violently demanded money for use at his gambling club. Counsel declared that Durrieux often insulted his wife in the presence of her children and the servants and frequently returned home intoxicated.

On October 28, 1910, Mme. Durrieux, said counsel, was forced to leave her home bearing the marks of her husband's blows. She returned later, and on February 6, 1911, there was a violent scene. Durrieux had lost heavily at the gambling tables although he denied he had been at his club. The police had to be called to establish peace in the house.

Mme. Durrieux asks $1,000 a month alimony and leaves the question of provision for her children to the decision of the courts.

Finds Cure for Epilepsy After Years of Suffering

"My daughter was afflicted with epileptic fits for three years, the attacks coming every few weeks. We employed several doctors, but they did her no good. About a year ago we heard of Dr. Miles' Nervine, and it certainly has proved a blessing to our little girl. She is now apparently cured and is enjoying the best of health. It is over a year since she has had a fit. We cannot speak too highly of Dr. Miles' Nervine."

Clean Your Rugs and Carpets With

20 MULE TEAM

BORAX
SOAP CHIPS

How To Clean Your Rugs and Carpets

The rule we give below, is applicable to the finest Oriental rug and to the cheapest ingrain carpet.

PREPARE A PASTE OF 20 MULE-TEAM BORAX SOAP CHIPS made by dissolving a ten cent package in four quarts of water kept nearly but not quite at boiling point for fifteen minutes. When cool it will be like jelly. This is sufficient for a pine by twelve rug. Place the paste in a pan or pail large enough to receive an ordinary scrubbing brush.

Proceed as Follows:

First sweep the rug thoroughly clean. Begin work at the corner farthest from the door. With a spoon or by hand spread 20 Mule-Team Borax Soap Chips paste over the surface of the rug covering not more than square yard at a time. Scrub vigorously with a fairly stiff scrubbing brush. Scrape up the paste with a zinc scraper or heavily galvanized iron filed smooth on the edges. This scraper or brush should be kept in motion all the time and 4 inches wide, with all edges filed smooth. Wipe thoroughly with a cloth wrung out of clean water. Work with the nap, never against it.

Proceed in this fashion section by section until the entire rug or carpet has been cleaned. It is well to have doors and windows wide open so that the rug may dry quickly. Do not replace furniture or walk on the rug until it is dry. Keep the cleaning water in which the rug is rinsed renewed as often as it becomes dirty. The water should be like warm. Follow these directions and your carpets and rugs will be as clean and bright as new. The colors will be brightened and improved. The fabric will not be injured.

ORDER FROM YOUR DEALER

A trial of these chips will prove them to be the most economical soap you ever used in the Laundry or Kitchen. No other soap or soap powder necessary when you use the chips.

SENATOR BROWN
DEFENDS THE

Speaks for Taft Administration at Annual Banquet of Republican Editors of Indiana.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 25.—Achievements of President Taft's administration were defended here last night by Senator Norris Brown, of Nebraska, at the annual banquet of the Republican Editors of Indiana. The speech was regarded as a keystone of the administration efforts in launching a country wide campaign. Besides the editors, Republican party leaders from all over the state attended the banquet.

Senator Brown reviewed at considerable length what had been accomplished by President Taft and the Republican party and laid the greatest stress on the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, railroad regulation, direct-election of United States senators, income tax amendment, enforcement of the Anti-Trust law and other measures and the Peace Treaties. In discussing the Payne tariff bill, Senator Brown said: "The Payne law has closed no factory; it has reduced the wage of no man; it has denied labor not a single opportunity; under it the farmer has prospered. It has in no way impaired the general prosperity of the people. And yet the law can be improved. It should be improved a schedule at a time and this will be done if the president and the Republican party have their way. Today congress has before it a message from the president demanding reduction of duties in one schedule based on the facts as shown by the experts of the tariff board."

"The tariff law contained two other propositions other than tariff duties which go far to give the measure a good name. It contained a provision to tax corporations, thereby compelling those men who prefer to enjoy the profits and immunities of doing business with the public as incorporators rather than as individuals, to contribute to the support of the federal government. That provision alone has brought to the national treasury, in round numbers more than $25,000,000 a year since it became effective."

Senator Brown said it was "left to the Taft administration to complete the job of clothing the Interstate Commerce Commission with power actually to prevent an increase in rates until after investigation by the commission, and by declaring any change in rates unlawful unless first consented to by the commission." He said he well remembered the debate in the senate on that feature of the law and while the debate was proceeding "the railroads were also proceeding to increase freight rates."

"It is good to know," said Senator Brown, "that while congress talked the president of the United States was on guard for the people and the day before the increase would become effective, President Taft invoked the power of the court and in the name of the United States, stopped by injunction every increase proposed by the railroads. Again it was the executive arm of the government and not congress which saved a helpless public from a great wrong. It is not possible that Republicans will hesitate to approve public service of that character."

Senator Brown declared that for more than half a century the people have been demanding the right to elect by direct vote United States senators, and that while the proposition never found a place in the national platform of the Republican party, it was advocated by President Taft in his acceptance message.

Referring to the income tax amendment now pending before the states, Senator Brown said that the resolution providing for this amendment was resting peacefully in committee until President Taft, by special message, admonished congress that such an amendment was right and should be passed and submitted to the states.

As to the enforcement of the Sherman anti-trust act, Senator Brown said:

"For twenty years every attempt on the part of law officers of the government has been met by the lawless with stubborn and arrogant resistance. It has taken the courts many years to hear and determine the various questions so presented; but the day of interpretation, though a long one, is about over. Ever since the decree in the Northern Security case was written, the march of prosecution has been steady and uninterrupted. The decrees in the Standard Oil and Tobacco cases, however, much you may criticize the phraseology of the opinions of the court, resulted in taking the life of those combinations in restraint of trade. The scene today in Chicago, where the great capitalists of the beef combinations are facing a trial jury in a fight for their liberty, is a demonstration of the good faith and the determination of this administration to enforce the law. The Attorney General echoed the voice of the nation when he said 'Guilt is Personal.' He said that during McKinley's administration three prosecutions were brought for the enforcement of the anti-trust law; forty-four prosecutions during the seven and a half years of Roosevelt's administration and that during two years and nine months of Taft's administration, thirty-seven prosecutions had been brought.

"If the press of the United States would tell the whole truth about President Taft," said the senator in conclusion, "there would not be enough Democratic votes in the electoral college to make a quorum." He said that if there is any credit to be claimed or any blame to be imposed for what has been done so far during Taft's administration, it belongs to the Republican party as well as to the president.

"We cannot condemn one without impeaching the other. We cannot praise one without commending both," he declared.

Senator Brown paid tributes to former Republican presidents, including Colonel Roosevelt and referring to a third term he said that Theodore Roosevelt never lied to the American people and when he said he did not want to be president again, he meant what he said.

"Every man who doubts that statement now, impeaches his integrity. I have honored and trusted him too many years to insult him now with the thought that he says one thing and means another," concluded the Nebraskan.

GUINEA PIG FOUND ALIVE IN THE RUINS

Had Lived for 16 Days in Wreckage of Equitable Fire Without Food or Water.

New York, Jan. 26.—The squeal of a guinea pig caused millions in treasure to be forgotten yesterday for a moment, at least, when hundreds of men and women, standing in line to get at their deposit boxes in the Equitable Building ruins, ceased wondering about the condition of their stocks and bonds in their amazement to learn that the pig had not only survived the big fire of Jan. 9, but was alive and kicking after 16 days in the ice-clad wreckage without food or water.

The pig had been taken to the Equitable Building a day or so before the fire for vivisection experiments by the Equitable Life Assurance Society's doctors, and it was in the medical offices on the Pine street side of the third floor on the morning that the building was destroyed. Although badly damaged by the blaze that particular section of the floor did not fall and Dr. Wolf went there to see if there was anything left in the way of records.

Soon after the excitement incidental to the guinea pig's rescue had subsided the vaults were opened and before noon more than 200 boxes containing private letters, securities of estates and collateral of Stock Exchange houses had been taken away.

So gratified were the officers of the company with the condition of the two vaults which were opened that by this evening one of the other two will be entered and the contents made available for box owners.

Honest Advice to Consumptives

Somehow there exists a vast amount of skepticism as to the possibility of curing Consumption. We state none but facts, and are sincere in what we assert. If ourselves afflicted with Tuberculosis, we should do precisely what we ask others to do—take Eckman's Alternative promptly and faithfully. The reason we should do this and warrant we have for telling all Consumptives to take it, is that we have the reports of many cures, one of which follows:

"1000 Sequoyia Ave., Phila., Pa. 'Gentlemen: For two years I was afflicted with hemorrhages of the lungs, the number totaled nearly one hundred. Our family physician advised another climate, as to remain would probably be fatal; however, I remained and in February of 1911, was taken with a severe attack of pneumonia. When I recovered sufficiently to walk about the house I was left with a right lung hacking cough, which no medicine I had taken could alleviate. I was again advised to go to another part of the country. It was at this time, March, 1902, that I learned of Eckman's Alternative. In a short time my cough was gone and I was pronounced 'well' or 'cured.' Since that time I have been in perfect health. I had taken other medicine, and I have resorted to no other medicine to effect a cure. I am at present in excellent health and feel that as long as I can obtain Eckman's Alternative, I have no fear of Consumption. I cannot speak too highly for the good it has done."

(Signed) HOWARD L. KLOTZ. Eckman's Alternative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. Ask for booklet of cured cases and write to Eckman Laboratories, Philadelphia, Pa. for more evidence. For sale by all leading druggists.

GRANVILLE

Granville, O., Jan. 26.—The public library of Granville, has become one of the fixed institutions of the village, and has grown from the very first. Starting with only a few books, magazines, and papers it has grown to goodly proportions, and has become an institution that the people of Granville are proud of. Arrangements are now under way whereby it is proposed to give an entertainment of songs, instrumental selections and readings some time in February for the benefit of the library. An interesting program is being prepared in which some of the best local talent will take part, and it is hoped that all our people will do all they can to help the cause.

The High school basketball team is now forging to the front and judging by indications will soon have one of the best high school teams ever turned out in Granville. The boys are doing faithful practice, two nights of the week in the Doane gymnasium and the rest of the week in the large hall of the Old Ladies' Home.

Mrs. J. M. Robinson and Mrs. C. L. Williams were in Columbus the forepart of the week, and were the guests of Miss Elizabeth Morris.

Miss Carrie Freeman of Oswego, N. Y., who has been visiting here for several days, returned home Thursday.

The streets of Granville were a glare of ice Friday, and it was with the greatest difficulty pedestrians managed to navigate. A number of persons have had severe falls, but no one thus far has been seriously injured.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Smoots who left Granville some time ago for an extended stay in the sunny south, are still at St. Petersburg, Florida, where they will probably remain a week longer, when they will go to Ft. Myers. While in Tampa they had the pleasure of meeting Frank Burkham and Perry Ashbrook of Alexandria.

Mrs. John Berger of Newark spent Thursday in Granville, the guest of Mrs. George Reese.

The improvements that are being made in the hall of the Tamaha lodge, Knights of Pythias, of this place, are rapidly progressing. The new steel ceiling has been placed, and the hard wood flooring has arrived and will be put down as soon as possible. When completed the Granville Knights of Pythias will have one of the most up-to-date lodge rooms in the county.

Teamsters have removed the tools from the John McCrory well to the Charles C. Robinson farm, on Center-ville, where they will commence operations as soon as possible.

The Heisey company has completed its well on the Bud Brown farm, southeast of the village. It is good for three quarters of a million.

FIRE DRIVES SORG FAMILY INTO STREET

New York, Jan. 26.—Fire this morning routed members of the family of Paul A. Sorg, the millionaire tobacco man, from their apartment in East Eighty-seventh street, and caused much excitement in the millionaire colony in the neighborhood.

The home of Brady Martin, adjoining the house where the fire occurred, and Henry Phipps, the Pittsburg millionaire, lives just across the way.

Mrs. Sorg was awakened by a sensation of suffocation and found the suite filled with smoke. She and her husband awakened other members of the family, and with their eight servants, fled to the street. The fire was confined to the suite which was gutted.

MOTOR BOAT MEN PROTEST

Toledo, Jan. 26.—Two thousand motor boat owners sent a protest to Congressman Sherwood today against the passing of his bill to change the rules of running motor boats as passed two years ago. The bill is backed by the harbor masters of the great lakes ports. If the legislation introduced by Sherwood is enacted the motor boat owners contend they will be classed the same as steam boats. Then the motor boats must carry whistles which can be heard two miles and a light that can be seen five miles and the light must be eight feet above the deck.

William J. Bryan Discusses Politics in a Pressing Emporium While Wating His Turn for Trousers.

St. Louis, Jan. 26.—William J. Bryan sat trouserless in a pressing emporium in the Union Station here while a tailor ironed wrinkles out of his trousers. Awaiting his trousers' "turn" on the pressing board he discussed politics and then hastened away with former Governor Folk to meet local Democrats.

Bryan arrived here early today and having an appointment with Folk to breakfast, planned to leave at 9:06, continuing on his way to Lincoln from Florida. He became so absorbed in conversation that he missed his train and stayed over until noon.

Regarding the Roosevelt boom, Mr. Bryan said he believed no president should have a third term.

UTICA IS SORRY TO LOSE ADVANCE

(Utica Herald.) The Advance cathedral glass factory which burned here a few weeks ago is to be rebuilt in Newark, a contract to that effect having been signed up with the Newark Board of Trade last week. The Board gives the concern a location at the west edge of the city and $1,000 cash.

Negotiations to secure the removal of the plant from Utica to Newark have been under way for six months or more, but not until the factory burned down could the deal be "swung."

While the cathedral factory employs only about 25 men, as against the 150 to 225 at each of the three window glass plants here, it was highly appreciated and Utica business people greatly regret its loss. Newark is to be congratulated upon getting the prosperous concern and the genial men at the local head—Messrs. Woltjen and Orville Griffith—and their families as citizens.

The Utica location of the factory was outside the corporation limits, so there is no direct loss to our village tax duplicate.

UTICA

Mrs. Frank Slanbaugh of Newark called on her many Utica friends from Friday to Monday. Mrs. Slanbaugh was formerly Miss Myrtle Davis of the Utica schools.

Our schools were dismissed Friday noon in order that our teachers might hear the lecture of Dr. Winship before the Newark teachers' institute.

Sensible Women Know Foundation of Health

As health talks to women become more general, both in the newspapers and on the platform, the mass of women are beginning to realize what the more cultivated have always known, that good health cannot be found in a powder box. The externals of health may be obtained in that way, but the basis of health lies deeper, and yet is just as easily obtained.

The most important thing that a woman can do for herself, and about which she is often most neglectful, is to watch the condition of her stomach and bowels. The weary eyes, the bad breath, the frequent headaches, the pimples, the general air of lassitude is nine times out of ten the result of constipation or indigestion, or both. Many simple remedies can be obtained, but the best in the estimation of most women is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is mild, pleasant to the taste and exactly suited to her needs. It is far superior to salts, cathartic pills, waters, etc., which are entirely too violent, they have at least one movement of the bowels each day, and when showing any tendency to constipation, should take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in the small dose prescribed. A brief use of it will so train the stomach and bowel muscles that all forms of medicine can be dispensed with. These opinions are voiced by thousands of women, after personal experience, among them Mrs. Mary J. Robinson, 1222 Washington St., Sandusky, Ohio, and Mary Moran, Salem, Ohio.

Any one wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

CAUGHT STURGEON THROUGH THE ICE

From North Bass Island comes the report of the catch of 27-pound sturgeon by Clark Hallock, who was fishing with hook and line through the ice north of the island. The catch of a sturgeon by hook and line at this time of the year is considered very strange. Many pickers are being caught by fishermen at the islands. —Sandusky Star-Journal.

FATHER OF SIX ELECTROCUTED EARLY TODAY

Children Pleaded in Vain for Parent's Life—Execution Occurred at the Charlestown, Mass., Prison.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 20.—Silas N. Phelps, the Monroe Bridge outlaw, was electrocuted at the Charlestown state prison this morning. The current was turned on at 12:15 and the man was pronounced dead by the physicians at 12:22.

Phelps's crime was the killing of Deputy Sheriff Emmett F. Haskins on June 12, 1910. On the previous afternoon Phelps had stabbed William Penman, superintendent of a paper mill where he was employed, and Haskins, with a posse, had been sent to arrest him. They had reached Phelps's home at Monroe Bridge at daybreak, and when no one responded to their knocking broke in the door.

As the posse started up a stairway toward an upper floor, Phelps appeared, armed with a rifle and shotgun, and threatened to kill the first man who tried to ascend. Haskins started up the stairs and was shot dead, while the posse fled from the house.

Phelps escaped to the woods, but after being hunted for two days by state troops surrendered. He was convicted of murder in the first degree in November, 1910.

Six young children of Phelps had pleaded in vain for his life, but Governor Foss refused to interfere.

Phelps met his death calmly. Preceded by Chaplain Herbert W. Stebbins, of the state prison, he walked into the death chamber with head erect and eyes straight in front of him. He said nothing when placed in the chair, and his lips remained firmly closed when the electrodes were being strapped to him. As he began his last march from his cell to the death room Phelps listened to the reading of the Scriptures by Rev. Mr. Stebbins.

At 12:15:55 1,000 volts of electricity were turned on. This current was kept on for eight seconds. Then a lesser current of 300 volts was shot through him, and was kept on for 22 seconds. Later the current was raised to 1,500 and again reduced to 300. At 12:22:45 he was pronounced to be dead.

Phelps was informed that the sentence would be executed upon him within half an hour after the Governor's Council refused a commutation of sentence or further reprieve yesterday afternoon. He was writing a letter at the time. As Sheriff Quinn entered the cell Phelps looked up.

"Writing letters?" asked the sheriff. Phelps nodded.

"Then," continued the sheriff, kindly, "perhaps you had better write another letter home, and any others that you may wish. They may be the last." Phelps understood.

His face paled and he remained quiet and thoughtful for a few moments. Then he asked for the chaplain, who came and remained with him until the last moment.

POLICE INVESTIGATE MYSTERIOUS DEATH

Philadelphia, Jan. 25.—The police of this city are investigating the circumstances surrounding the case of Mrs. Edith Marvel, 23 years old, a trained nurse, who was found dead in her home here with a bullet in her head.

There are signs of suicide. A note found near the body stated that her husband had lost his affection for her, and that he was now at liberty to bestow them upon another woman.

Another note stated that her husband was not responsible for the act. William Marvel, the husband, who is 45 years old and also a trained nurse, has been retained by the police as a witness to await the action of the coroner. The police say they are not satisfied with the handwriting in the notes.

Marvel was put through a severe examination by the police, but it is reported that they were unable to learn anything further than what was shown at the hearing. A letter, addressed to Mrs. D. R. Trimble, Pittsburg, Penn., was found in the woman's room. It is supposed to have been addressed by her, but the handwriting differs greatly from that of the two notes.

WOMAN ARRESTED CHARGED WITH THAW DIAMOND ROBBERY

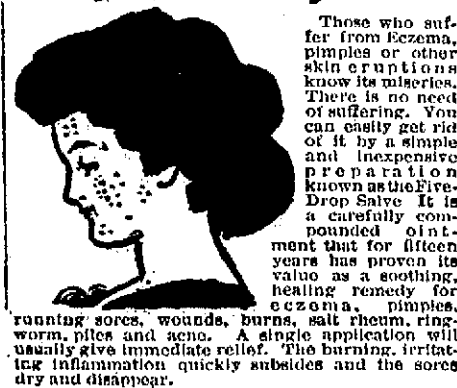

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Mrs. Nellie Prince, who is said to be under indictment at Pittsburg for being implicated in the burglary of the homes of Mrs. Isaac Thaw Jr. and William J. Kaufmann, wealthy department store proprietor, surrendered to the police yesterday. When she gave herself up she declared she was innocent of the charge against her.

Pittsburg, Jan. 26.—The homes of Mrs. Isaac Thaw, Jr. and William Kaufmann, wealthy residents of this city, were ransacked in January, 1909, during the dinner hour. The robbers gained entrance through the second floor window. From the Thaw home jewelry and family heirlooms, valued at $5,000 were stolen, while between $6,000 and $10,000 worth of jewels and furs disappeared from the Kaufmann home.

Unusual features characterized the Thaw robbery. A short time ago the jewels were returned without so much as a stick pin missing from the collection. The details of the return were never made public, but a story to the effect that Mrs. Thaw had paid $20,000 for their return was neither affirmed or denied.

On January 16 last, secret indictments were returned by the grand jury against Mrs. Nellie Prince, Harry Robinson, Joseph Birtsch and George Blissett, all of Chicago. Robinson is said to be serving a sentence of 20 years in the Stillwater, Minn., penitentiary, having been convicted, it is alleged, of blowing a safe at St. Paul. The whereabouts of Birtsch and Blissett are unknown.

at the close of the agricultural extension school held at London, Ohio, by the College of Agriculture, and all those who attended this school became charter members. Officers were selected and a constitution and by-laws adopted, making it a permanent organization with its object "the promotion of agricultural knowledge and the intellectual and social advancement of its members." Meetings are held monthly, either at the court house in London or at the home of some member. The program consists of recitation or music, current events, an essay or lecture and discussion. Members bring their dinner and spend the entire day at the meetings. The membership fee is $1 per year for men and 25 cents for women, this fee carrying with it the privilege of attending the agricultural extension school which it is planned to hold annually. There is at the present time a paid-up membership of 53 men and 37 women. L. R. Bostwick is secretary.

THE SEMIDRESS.
The simple bodice, with the low shoulder finished by a wide hem and the full length close-fitting sleeves attached to the lining of the bodice, is a feature of some of the newest frocks, although the majority of gowns show the elbow-length peasant sleeve such as we have worn for some time past. This sleeve and the modified peasant sleeve will undoubtedly be worn during the summer. The skirts of all semi-dressy frocks escape the ground all around and are as narrow as ever. They are made either quite simple and trimmed with a row of ball buttons down the entire length of the front, a smart new feature or they have the knee-deep tunic.—Harper's Bazar.

COSHOCTON ELKS INAUGURATE MOVE FOR LODGE HOME

The Coshocton Elks will have a home of their own. This was determined at a meeting of the members of the lodge this week. The movement was enthusiastically endorsed and the special committee which has been quietly working on the matter for the last several weeks, was authorized to go ahead and given power to close any deal they thought proper. The plan is to organize a building committee, composed entirely of the members of the order. The company will erect a suitable building, its nature depending upon the site chosen. It may be a home or it may embody business features also.

It has been suggested to the British local government that cans of condensed skimmed milk should be labeled "Skimmed milk, unfit for infants."
